Vanette Schwartz was selected as the recipient of the 2011 Outstanding College Researcher Award for Milner Library in recognition of her scholarly contributions to both Illinois State University and the field of librarianship.

Among Schwartz's many contributions are her efforts to fund library resources by winning competitive grants, which have improved collections, exhibits, and curriculum. This in turn has assisted faculty and benefited students.

Milner Library and the University have been greatly rewarded by Schwartz's dedication and service over the last 33 years, during which she achieved the rank of associate professor. As the library's Social Science and Maps librarian, she has subject responsibilities in history, social work, sociology, and women's and gender studies.

Particularly notable among her achievements is work on Illinois State University's Faculty Publications Database. In its tenth year, this research project began with the ambitious goal of creating a comprehensive bibliography of all publications by faculty members since 1857, the year the University was founded, to the present. She is one of the original co-principal investigators, and as a colleague states, she has provided the "critical leadership" necessary to maintain this project's momentum. The compilation of the first 100 years of faculty and faculty publications was completed in time for Illinois State's 150th Anniversary celebration, and the database was listed prominently on the University's website throughout its sesquicentennial during 2007–2008.

The 2011 Outstanding Service Award was received by Ted Schwitzner. He has contributed substantially to Illinois State University through his participation and leadership in service activities at multiple levels. His involvement and the knowledge that he has gained from it has informed and facilitated Milner Library's ability to respond to changing realities in the academic library environment. Schwitzner is the coordinator of Bibliographic Services.

During the last three years, Schwitzner has performed service for Milner Library, as well as for professional organizations whose work directly impacts library operations. These include: The Consortium of Academic and Research Libraries in Illinois, Illinois Association of College and Research Libraries, Ex Libris Users of North America (ELUNA), the Illinois Library Association (ILA), the Illinois State Library, and the Online Computer Library Center (OCLC). His level and quality of service is reflected in the numerous leadership roles that he has held. He chaired ELUNA's Voyager Product Working Group, mentored new library leaders as part of the State Library's Synergy program, served as ILA treasurer and Executive Board member, and held several key officer positions within the OCLC network.

Within Milner Library, Schwitzner has provided valuable service on two search committees as well as a number of other committees. He has provided important leadership on multiple levels and served the profession at local, state, and national levels.

Roll Out the Red or as Milner puts it "Roll Out the Read" during the 2010 Homecoming parade garnered first place again as library staff and student workers rolled red book carts on the parade route. Milner also took second place for the campus decorating contest in which the entire main floor was decked out with a six foot Reggie Redbird in the middle of all the red crepe paper.

FALL SPEAKERS

A week did not pass without an event or speech taking place in the library. Carlos Eire shared his story of being a child in Cuba and what life was like in the states after being one of the 14,000 children rescued in Operation Peter Pan, a rescue attempt to save Cuban children from the Castro regime from 1960-1962. The tattooed lady Amelia Klem Osterud shared her eight years of research on tattooed women through a multi-media presentation highlighting the most famous women from the mid-1800s to the present day.
