2018

Slide deck 11: Opening Up (1 panel)

Angela L. Bonnell
Illinois State University, abonne@ilstu.edu

---

Recommended Citation

https://ir.library.illinoisstate.edu/servingstudents/6

---

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.library.illinoisstate.edu/servingstudents

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Milner Library Exhibits at ISU ReD: Research and eData. It has been accepted for inclusion in Serving Students: The Legacy of Milner's Library by an authorized administrator of ISU ReD: Research and eData. For more information, please contact ISUReD@ilstu.edu.
Since its unassuming beginnings, the library has grown to meet the changing needs of the University. The physical building has gradually expanded from its 160 square foot entryway to our current 224,000 square foot building. Over the years, the collection has grown in size and breadth to accommodate the transition from a teacher education institution into a multipurpose university with degree programs at the bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral levels. To adjust to student demands, the Library’s hours of service have extended to include weekends and evenings.

Once only capable of seating several dozen students at one time, the current building can be home to over a thousand at any given moment. (Many more visit our virtual site to access sources offsite!) Where Ange. V. Milner was once the sole librarian for the University, Milner Library now employs over 70 librarians and staff to serve students’ diverse needs.