Distinguished alumni

Cross, Johnson to be honored at Homecoming

Two alumni of Illinois State University, now living in Florida and Massachusetts, will receive Distinguished Alumni awards here from the Alumni Association on Saturday, Oct. 18.

They are Dr. K. Patricia Cross, a 1948 graduate who is distinguished research scientist with Educational Testing Service, Berkeley, Calif., and Dr. Eric H. Johnson of Tallahassee, Fla., who retired as an ISU vice president in 1973.

They will be recognized at various ISU Homecoming events on Oct. 18, including a parade, football game, and an annual class reunion dinner in the University Union after the game.

Dr. Cross, who is now starting a two-year term as a visiting professor of education at Harvard University, Boston, has attained national recognition in higher education for research, writing and speaking. Also a lecturer in higher education at the University of California, Berkeley, she has lived in the San Francisco area since 1966 and served ETS and the University on a joint appointment from 1966-77.

She has won three national book awards, including one for her latest of four texts, "Accent on Learning: Improving Instruction and Reshaping the Curriculum," in 1976. She has written numerous chapters and monographs, in addition to many articles for professional journals, on various topics in higher education, including curriculum, adult education, non-traditional programs, and the improvement of instruction.

Following graduation from ISU as a mathematics major, she earned A.M. and Ph.D. degrees in psychology from the University of Illinois where she served as a research assistant and assistant dean of women. From 1959-63 she was dean of women and dean of students at Cornell University in New York. Dr. Cross spent the first three years of her career with ETS in Princeton, N.J., before moving to Berkeley.

Her many awards and honors reflect favorably upon ISU and the U. of I. She has received six honorary degrees, including one from ISU in 1970 and one from Loyola University in Chicago in 1980. Current professional activities include duty as chairperson of the National Planning Board, Project of the Commission on Enhancing the State Role in Lifelong Learning, Education Commission of the States, and as a member of the board of directors of the Association for the Study of Higher Education, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Eric H. Johnson, a 1939 graduate of ISU, also earned masters and doctorate degrees from the University of Illinois. He came to ISU in 1959 as assistant to the president after holding positions with the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the University of Illinois, and as a high school teacher, principal and superintendent.

He is being recognized for outstanding service to ISU, primarily as vice president for business and finance, during the 1960s when the University was expanding rapidly. A key decision-maker at ISU during this period, his efforts toward the passage of the State Universities Bond Issue in 1960 and in the development and operation of the bond revenue program for residence halls and other facilities at ISU have been praised highly by ISU and community officials.

After he retired in 1973 from a 35-year educational career in Illinois, he has been active as director of the office of planned gifts for the Florida State University Foundation, Tallahassee.

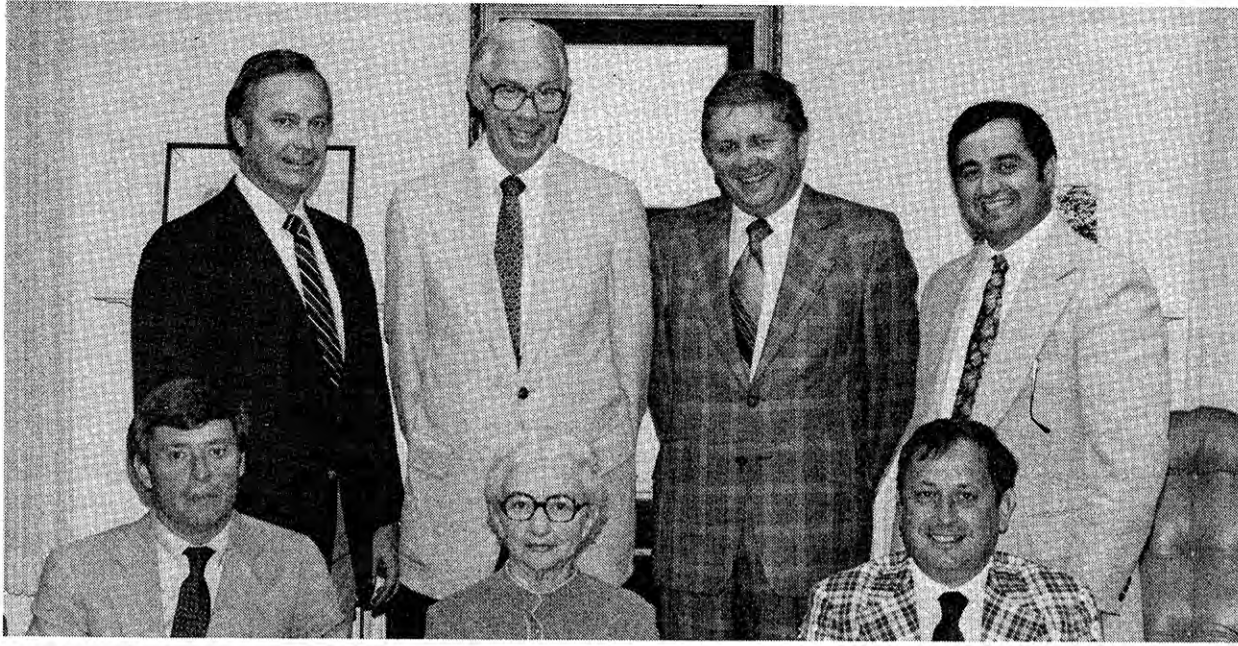

While at ISU he served as a committee chairman or member for a number of community college surveys in Illinois and developed guidelines for the section on community colleges for the 1963 Illinois Master Plan. Prior to joining the ISU staff in 1959, he was responsible for all teacher certification in Illinois as Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction and from 1950-57 was a research associate for the University of Illinois College of Education.

Seven new members join ISU Foundation board

Seven persons were named as new members of the Illinois State University Foundation board of directors during the annual meeting of the board.

A 1979-80 income report and 1980-81 budget of projects to be funded presented by John M. Sayre, ISU director of alumni services and development, was approved by the board.

Re-elected as officers of the board were: Thomas N. Jacob, president; W. Charles Witte, vice president, and E. Burton Mercier, secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee will include the officers along with Dr. Roger Champagne, ISU history professor, and William Kuhfuss, Mackinaw.

Persons elected to four-year terms as new members are: Dr. Alice L. Ebel, ISU emerita professor of political science; Dr. Dan Scott, Bloomington physician; Craig Hart, president of Bloomington Federal Savings and Loan, and Richard Lenahan, president of the First National Bank of Normal.

Three other persons will serve on the board as presidents of affiliated groups. They are Sam Van Scoyoc, ISU Alumni Association; James T. Aman, ISU Parents Association, and Steve Henriksen, ISU Student Association.

The total gift income of the ISU Foundation for 1979-80 was $547,629 from 6,039 donors, up from $399,040 from 6,071 donors the previous year. This includes a gifts-in-kind total of $290,587, up about $100,000 from a year ago. Much of the gifts-in-kind is represented by art objects donated to the University Museum.

Included in total gifts is $192,310 from 5,627 donors to the Annual Fund of the ISU Foundation. This figure increased from $142,696 from 5,414 donors a year ago. This represents gifts restricted for use by various academic departments by The Redbird Club (athletics), Friends of Milner Library, Friends of WGLT (radio), and Friends of the Arts.

Money from unrestricted gifts and from investment income is used to fund projects approved for the 1980-81 year. The board designated a total of $92,355 for this purpose for the upcoming year. About $50,000 will go to Foundation-Alumni Distinguished Scholarships for academically talented freshmen and transfer students.

Also approved for funding were the Bone Scholarships and other academic programs, and service programs for ISU Civil Service staff members, alumni, parents of students, and retired faculty and staff members.

Janet Kasbeer honored by Waukesha, Wis., MS chapter

Janet Kasbeer

A Waukesha, Wis., resident and 1972 M.S. graduate in physical education at ISU recently was named "MS Mother of the Year" for 1980 by the Southeastern Wisconsin Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Janet (Linder) Kasbeer has gained the admiration and respect of many co-workers as she manages to be a single parent to three teenagers, work full time, and help with many church and community activities.

Being a Girl Scout leader, Sunday School teacher and organizer of her church's altar guild and girls' softball coach have gained praise for Jan from many associates. She was divorced seven years ago and first contracted MS in 1977.

"The best thing is that she's got a positive attitude about everything," according to Rev. Gregory D. Weyrauch, pastor of St. Andrew Lutheran Church in Waukesha. "She just keeps moving around, even when she's tired and weak. She doesn't let it get her down." "She is just a real super, super lady!... an independent self-starter," reports Marilyn Hurwitz, patient service coordinator for the local MS chapter.

Jan reports that she works in the office of a lithographic firm where she types export orders. "I would rather be teaching, but I'm doing o.k.," she wrote in a letter to ALUMNI NEWS.

Tour plans for 1981 season

The tour committee of the Alumni Association has announced plans for group alumni vacation trips during the coming months.

Four persons from the Bloomington-Normal area make up the tour committee. They are E.B. Mercier, '50, and Gordon Fidler, '51, representing the board of directors of the Association, along with Alice (Casebeer) Lartz, 54, and Donald Templeton, emeritus faculty and staff member.

A Caribbean cruise out of San Juan, P.R., is scheduled for Dec. 27 to Jan. 3, as announced in previous issues of ALUMNI NEWS. All available space for the cruise has been taken.

The committee plans to offer a week at Cancun, Mexico, during the spring break period (March 8-15). This small city on the tip of the Yucatan Peninsula is only four hours flying time from the Midwest and is one of developing scenic and historical vacation sites in Mexico.

An Alaskan cruise or combination flight-cruise or a package tour of Great Britain and Ireland are being investigated for the summer of 1981, along with off-season and shorter Caribbean cruises.

Bus or rail trips within Illinois and to other parts of the United States are also under study by the Association travel committee.

Parents Day to be held on Oct. 25

The ISU Parents Association will sponsor the annual Parents Day program on Saturday, Oct. 25.

The day will open with registration at the University Union at 9 a.m., followed by bus tours, visits to the ISU Planetarium, and open houses by some ISU academic departments and student services agencies from 10 a.m. until noon.

A football game between the ISU Redbirds and the Indiana State Sycamores is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. in Hancock Stadium and the Parents Day dinner will take place in the Union Ballroom at 5:30 p.m.

Entertainment in the form of a benefit concert by student talent will be presented in the Union Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The concert will be sponsored by the ISU Parents Association and proceeds will be used for talent grants throughout the University.

Kern

Susan Kern, associate professor of home economics, was named as one of two assistants to President Lloyd I. Watkins. She has been a faculty member since 1974 and has served as an assistant to the dean of the College of Applied Science and Technology.

Replacing David Strand, Kern will be responsible for budgetary coordination in the president's office and will be line officer for Alumni Services and Development and the internal auditor. The title of executive officer, held by Strand, has been abolished.

Susan Kern

Boaz

John K. Boaz, a faculty member since 1965, replaces Leo Eastman as assistant to Charles E. Morris, vice president for administrative services (formerly secretary of the University). An associate professor of communication, Boaz has served in a number of campus positions and will aid in the administration of affirmative action, campus recreation, community affairs, environmental health and safety, parking, personnel, public safety, services for the handicapped and university museums.

John Boaz

Richardson

Carmen C. Richardson, acting director of student academic services for the past year, was appointed director of the division which administers the high potential students program, academic advisement, the university writing, mathematics, and reading-study centers. She was chairperson of the English department from 1976-79.

Kachur, Kennedy

Donald S. Kachur, professor of education, is acting chairperson of curriculum and instruction. He replaces James Kracht who resigned to accept a position in Texas.

Larry D. Kennedy, director of research, development and field services for the College of Education, is also serving as acting chairperson of specialized educational development. He replaces James Walker who resigned to take a position as dean of education at California State University, Hayward. Walker had served ISU since 1977.

Stanford

Sharon Stanford, former business manager of the University Union/Auditorium, is the new director of internal auditing. She has held a faculty position in accounting, is a certified public accountant, and has a master's degree from ISU in accounting. Her staff includes Marshall Miller, former business manager in men's athletics, and Richard Papuga, who was a staff accountant analyst at Citizens Savings and Loan.

Jacks

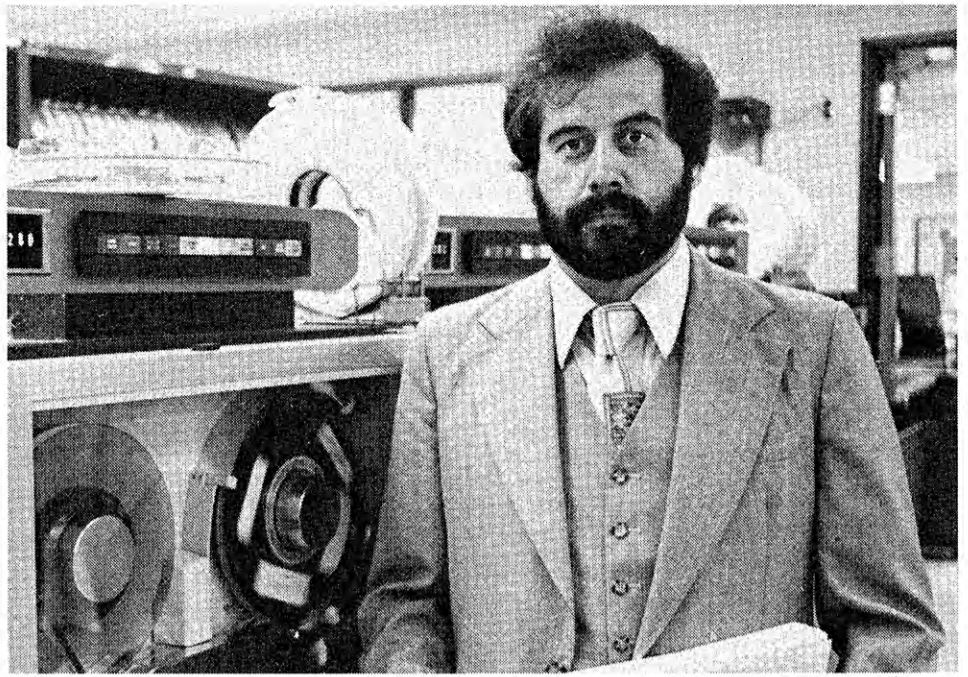

G. Kay Jacks, a Cincinnati Technical College staff member since 1976, is director of student financial aid at ISU. At Cincinnati she oversaw a change to a comprehensive financial aid automated delivery system, designed and conducted in-service college-wide training sessions, and prepared an award-winning student consumer information handbook.

Holcomb

Lucille Smith Holcomb, assistant director of student financial aid, is now serving as acting affirmative action officer. She replaces William Savage who resigned in May to accept a position at the University of Illinois in Urbana. Holcomb has been a staff member at ISU since 1968.

Fulbright grant

Irene T. Brosnahan, English Department faculty member, will be in the People's Republic of China for the coming year on a Fulbright grant to instruct English as a second language at Shanghai Foreign Language Institute. Born in China, she has a bachelor's degree from the University of Hong Kong and advanced degrees from the University of Hawaii and Georgetown University. She has been on the ISU faculty since 1968.

ISU Communications Professor John Cragan

John Cragan, communication professor, and his partner Donald Shields from the University of Missouri at St. Louis, were featured in the premiere of "Universe," a half-hour science news program hosted by Walter Cronkite, on the CBS network July 12.

Their work with a computer-written "perfect" political speech and the field testing in Peoria were the subject of the program. "The whole point of this work is that modern day speeches are given for media, not for people," Cragan said.

"Newspapers, TV and radio pick off a couple of quotes from speeches, so each phrase in the speech must stand on its own, and that's how politicians approach their speech-making."

Teaching award nominations open

All alumni may nominate a current faculty member who teaches primarily undergraduate classes for the new Distinguished Teaching Awards program.

The awards, made for the first time last March, are sponsored by the ISU Foundation, the Alumni Association and the Parents Association.

Alumni in the classes of 1978, '79, and '80 will be sent a nomination form for the 1981 awards. Others may request forms from Alumni Services.

Winners of the first awards in 1980, by colleges, were: Steven G. Cox, Applied Science and Technology; Edmund F. Ficek, Business; Thomas C. Fitch, Education; Eric Bickley, Fine Arts, and Paul J. Baker, Arts and Sciences.

Ruth Henline selected for 'Stretch' Miller award

Ruth Henline, who motivated one of her English classes at Illinois State University by attempting to learn football plays, will receive the "Stretch" Miller Friend of Sports Award Saturday, Sept. 6, at a luncheon preceding the ISU-Nicholls State football game.

The Miller Award was established in 1976 in memory of the late Campbell A. "Stretch" Miller, a 1933 alumnus of ISU who was widely known as a radio-television broadcaster, sports columnist and after-dinner speaker.

The citation recognizes support to ISU athletics through interest, time and personal involvement. Past winners have been Eldon A. Lichty in 1976, Francis R. Brown in 1977, C.M. Hammerlund and the late Howard J. Ivens in 1978, and Robert Monninger in 1979.

Henline, professor emeritus of English, was on the ISU faculty from 1926-70. She maintained a strong interest in intercollegiate sports, serving 17 years on the Athletic Council and offering special teaching help to students, including athletes, who needed to improve their knowledge of basic grammar.

The challenge of teaching one class of 26 young men who were on the football team resulted in her attempt to learn the intricacies of the sport.

"I told them that anyone who can learn a hundred signals in football as they did could learn the eight parts of speech in English, so I made a bargain with them," Henline recalls.

At the end of the semester, the class would test her knowledge of football while she tested their mastery of grammar.

That fall, in good weather and bad, she attended all of the practices. "They wouldn't tell me a thing," she remembers. "They would yell 'hurup, hurup, hurup,' then everyone would fall to the right. Then they lined up again, yelled 'hurup, hurup, hurup,' and everyone fell to the left."

Those football signals proved to be as mystifying as hieroglyphics.

"I never did pass their tests," she said. But they passed hers. She taught English with an unabashed enthusiasm for her subject and love for her students.

Henline lives at 902 Crestline Dr., Normal, and still takes a keen interest in events, athletic and otherwise, at Illinois State University.

McHenry, other alumni represent many careers

NOTE: This article by Roger Cushman, news service director, first appeared in the Back to School edition of the Bloomington Daily Pantagraph.

Illinois State University graduates are making their mark in government, business and education.

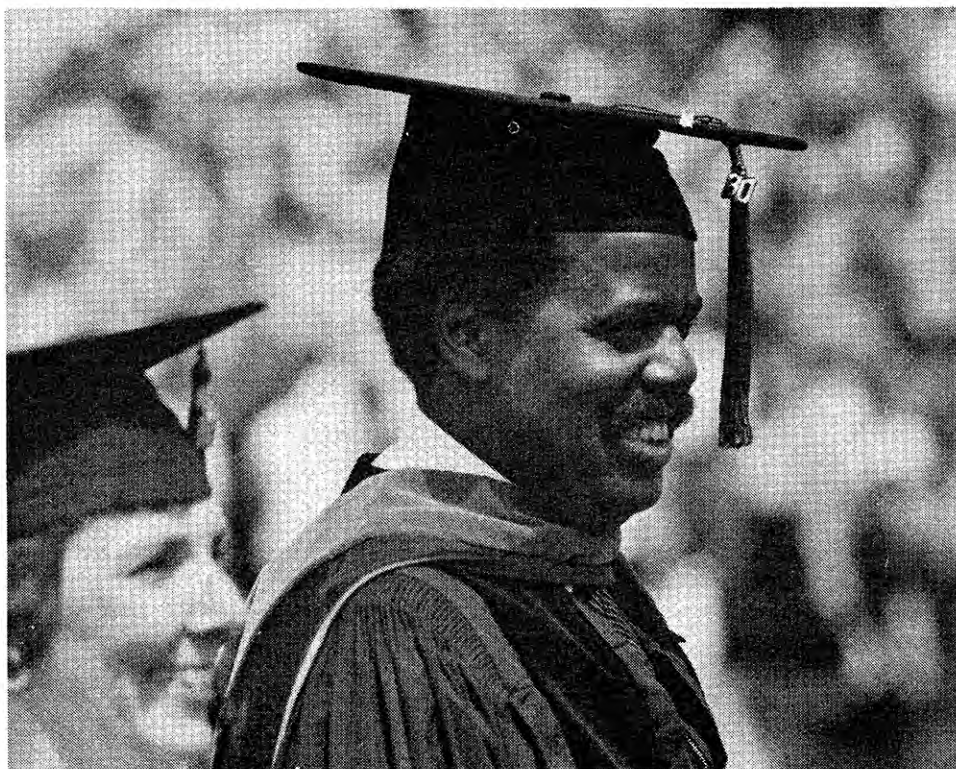

Prominent in government is Donald F. McHenry, the United States ambassador to the United Nations.

In business, ISU is represented by Ralph C. Bastastini, vice chairman and director of Greyhound Corp., and Graham Whipple, vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and president of Lockheed Propulsion Corp.

In education, the university has such distinguished alums as James L. Fisher, president of the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, which is the primary voice for higher education in the nation, and K. Patricia Cross, distinguished research scientist for the Educational Testing Service.

They illustrate a point about Illinois State University, which each year sends approximately 4,000 graduates into the labor force. Although founded in 1857 as a teacher training institution, the university's graduates now enter all types of careers.

In fact, the most popular career choices for recent ISU graduates have been in business and industrial occupations. At the same time, the university ranks as the nation's leading producer of prospective teachers.

Janet B. Johnson, Pekin, represented alumni at the 1980 Commencement when Donald McHenry was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Those two facts may seem contradictory, judging from the dramatic change in career choices at ISU over the past eight years.

Just eight years ago, the graduating class at ISU produced 2,200 students with teaching degrees and 800 trained for other fields.

Now those figures are reversed. Some 2,400 graduates this year trained for such fields as accounting, agriculture, industrial technology, data processing, chemistry, mathematics and many, many others to enter the job market in government, industry and environmental agencies. The number of teaching candidates dwindled to 1,000.

The source for those statistics is Parker Lawlis, Director of Placement Services at ISU. In eight years, he points out, "we have changed the emphasis from teacher placement to business placement."

Business seems to be where the action is, despite the downturn in the economy in the past year. A record 190 business firms scheduled 493 interview dates for 4,523 students at ISU last year. Another 1,152 candidates were on a waiting list for interviews.

The lower number of teaching candidates—elsewhere as well as at ISU—leads Lawlis to predict a shortage in many teaching fields that will be critical by 1985.

Whatever type of career beckons a student, the advice from Lawlis is to start planning long before registering for a senior interview.

"I tell parents they should have their son or daughter talk to as many people as they can who are doing what they want to do," Lawlis said. "This gives them a feel for what the job is."

It is also important to develop specific skills that are marketable and to define personal goals. This is as true for the student majoring in the humanities or arts as well as the more vocational-oriented fields.

"Industry is not looking for someone with a specific degree so much as a type of personality," commented Joseph Miller, placement assistant. "A specific degree is not as important as defined goals. An English major can go into business successfully if he has clear ideas about what he wants to do."

One other significant change that Lawlis has noted is the growth of opportunity for women graduates.

"In the 1960s," Lawlis said, "a woman would be a teacher, a secretary, a nurse—or a housewife. Now careers are open in any area. In accounting, for example, we had no women graduates in 1972, but now close to half of our accounting graduates are women."

The beginning salary range has also improved. According to Lawlis, the average starting salaries this year are $13,500 for business and $12,000 for education.

A sobering note, though, was the sudden downturn in the economy last April. "We were going great until the first of April," Lawlis said. "Peoria Caterpillar hired 31 of our graduates a year ago, and had hired five until the economy folded in April. They canceled their interviews after that."

Auditorium events open to all

Series subscriptions for the ISU Union Auditorium's performing arts programs for 1980-81 are on sale through Sept. 19, and the Auditorium is offering several series from which to choose in its "Season of Stars."

The Variety Series features a touring company of the hit Broadway musical "A Chorus Line" on Nov. 15, and Houston Ballet with orchestra on March 30, as well as the actor Dick Poston in "Lincoln vs. Douglas: 1858" on Oct. 2, and Les Brown and his Band of Renown on March 20.

Comedian Bill Cosby headlines the Lively Arts Series with two performances on Friday evening Oct. 24, on Parents weekend. The series also includes the National Band of New Zealand on Oct. 11, The Fats Waller musical "Ain't Misbehavin'" on Feb. 3, and an all-Gershwin program on March 4.

Series ticket prices range from $11 to $35, and give the purchaser first priority in seating, the same seat for each program, and first opportunity to purchase tickets for the special events including Fred Waring and the Young Pennsylvanians on Nov. 18.

The Auditorium is also offering a Family Fun Series highlighted by a fully staged musical production of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" on Dec. 6. This series also includes a magic show by The Magistics on Oct. 19, and the Piper Puppets' presentation of "Peter and the Wolf" on March 8—all performances are matinees. There is also a Sampler Series aimed at ISU students and young adults in the community that includes a Rock n' Roll Revival on Sept. 27, Bill Cosby on Oct. 24 and "A Christmas Carol" on Dec. 6.

Auditorium manager Clyde Lindsley indicates "we recognize that different people have different tastes in entertainment, and we are offering a wide variety of programs in music, theatre and dance. We hope that ISU alumni living within a reasonable distance of Bloomington/Normal will take advantage of them."

For information on the events and ticket availabilities, call or write the ISU Union Auditorium Box Office. Regular weekday hours are from 12 noon to 6 p.m., and the number is (309) 436-5444. Tickets for individual events go on sale about three weeks prior to the performance.

The Auditorium's "Season of Stars" booklet for 1980-81 was mailed out in early July. Persons who did not receive a copy and would like to have one should contact the Auditorium Box Office.

Souvenirs available

The Alumni Services Office has a number of souvenir and gift items available for purchase. They include "A Piece of the Turf" for $5, Alumni Association frisbies for $1, and unframed original prints of Fell Gate, Watterson Towers, or the Old Main Bell for $10 each. A copy of "A Place of Education," Roger Champagne's 10-year history of ISU is $7, and comes with a bonus copy of "The Eleventh Decade," Helen Marshall's history of the previous 10 years.

Others who do not live in an area that is mentioned but would like to have a meeting in their area are also asked to respond as soon as possible so that a meeting might be arranged.

After Jan. 1, meetings will be announced in Florida (Winter Haven, for one) and Washington, D.C. Meetings in Illinois are being planned for the following sites: Chicago, Kankakee, Rockford, the Quad-Cities, Peoria, Springfield, Danville, the St. Louis area, Decatur, Quincy and Galesburg.

Sayre also notes that meetings will be considered for other areas where alumni are concentrated upon request.

Eight named to Athletic Hall of Fame on Sept. 6

Six men and three women will be inducted into the Illinois State University Athletic Hall of Fame during the Redbird football game Sept. 6 against Nicholls State.

The nine are Dave Bergman, Will Robinson, Karen Roppa, Joan Streit, John Swalec, Kathy Veroni, D.A. Weibring, Milt Weisbecker and Rick Whitlow.

DAVID BRUCE (DAVE) BERGMAN was an all-America outfielder for the Redbirds in 1974. The 27-year-old native of Park Ridge now plays major league baseball for the Houston Astros.

A two-time ISU most valuable player under coach Duffy Bass, Bergman's .365 career batting mark is the second-best in ISU history.

He was drafted by the New York Yankees following his junior year, then traded to the Astros in 1977 for current Chicago Cub Cliff Johnson. Bergman won minor league player of the year awards in the N.Y.-Penn. League and the Eastern League.

WILLIAM JOSEPH (WILL) ROBINSON coached the ISU basketball team from 1970-75. During ISU's early years in NCAA Division I competition, Robinson's teams compiled a 78-51 record, a winning percentage of better than .600.

He was the first black man to head a major college basketball program when ISU brought him in from Detroit in 1970. Among his top players at ISU are fellow Hall of Famers Doug Collins, Ron de Vries and Rick Whitlow.

Robinson, now 68, scouts for the Detroit Pistons of the NBA.

KAREN ROPPA starred in basketball and softball at ISU from 1966-70. In softball, she was an all-America choice in 1969 as ISU placed second in the college world series.

She participated in the first AIAW national basketball championship tournament as a member of the ISU team in 1970.

Roppa teaches and coaches softball at Plainfield High School and is assistant basketball coach at Lewis University. She has officiated three IHSA girls basketball state tournaments.

JOAN (JO) STREIT was a classmate and teammate of Roppa's at ISU. Playing both softball and basketball, Streit was the first woman at ISU to be awarded a basketball scholarship.

In 1978, Streit coached Joliet West High School to the IHSA girls basketball championship and was the state's coach of the year. She also coached Joliet West softball teams to the state tournament in 1977 and 1978.

Streit now teaches physical education and coaches basketball and softball at Lewis University.

JOHN J. SWALEC, JR., concluded 31 years of participation in wrestling as a player, coach and official by calling the 1980 NCAA Division I heavyweight championship match.

Swalec was chief wrestling official for the Big 10 conference for five years and worked its championships 10 times. His decisive, flamboyant style was the subject of a 1975 television sports feature by NBC.

The 46-year-old resident of Libertyville is vice-president for educational affairs at College of Lake County in Grayslake. He holds bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees from ISU.

KATHLEEN (KATHY) VERONI played field hockey, volleyball, softball and basketball while an ISU student from 1964-68. She has coached field hockey and softball at Western Illinois University since 1972.

Her WIU softball teams won state championships in 1975 and 1977. Veroni's 1979 field hockey team won the state championship while setting a school record with 18 straight wins.

Veroni also has had a successful playing career in AAU basketball, professional softball and field hockey.

DONALD ALBERT (D.A.) WEIBRING is one of the young sensations of the Professional Golfers Association tour. The 27-year-old native of Quincy has earned more than $180,000 on the pro tour in less than four years.

Playing for coach Rusty Wells, Weibring was part of a golf team which led ISU into national prominence in the early 1970s.

Two years after graduation from ISU in 1975, Weibring joined the PGA tour. In 1979, he won the Quad Cities Open in Coal Valley, Ill. In July of this year, he returned to ISU for a clinic and exhibition for The Redbird Club to benefit the ISU golf program.

MILTON E. (MILT) WEISBECKER led the ISU athletic program through times of change from 1966-74.

As athletic director, he successfully led ISU from college division to university division (Division I) athletics. He brought AstroTurf to Hancock Stadium, served on many NCAA national committees and had an outstanding record in seven seasons as head golf coach including a fourth place NCAA College Division finish in 1969.

Weisbecker, now 50, is a professor of health, physical education, recreation and dance at ISU. From 1974-78, he served as ISU's director of alumni services and development.

RODERICK REYNOLDS (RICK) WHITLOW was one of the finest shooters in ISU basketball history, averaging 18.1 points per game from 1972-75. He was ISU's most valuable player in 1975 while gaining academic all-America honors.

The 6-2 guard held the ISU career field goal percentage record until Del Yarbrough and Joe Galvin surpassed it last season. Whitlow is ISU's No. 10 all-time leading scorer and six of his teammates are among the top 20, including Collins (No. 1) and Billy Lewis (No. 2).

After his playing career ended, he served as commentator on ISU football and basketball broadcasts on WJBC in Bloomington. He is now a sportscaster at WPTZ-TV in Plattsburgh, N.Y.

Bob Donewald

The toughest seven-game stretch in ISU basketball history might well be from Dec. 4 to Dec. 22 of the upcoming season.

Coach Bob Donewald's young team will play a minimum of five games against NCAA or NIT entries from last season during that time.

The stretch begins with Bradley at home and includes two games with powerful Pepperdine, a home game with Syracuse and opening the Marquette Classic in Milwaukee against Clemson. The second game could be against host Marquette.

The remainder of the schedule includes traditional rivals DePaul, Loyola, Northern Illinois and Detroit, plus top new opponents South Alabama and Cleveland State.

Donewald's 13-man squad includes only two returning starters: guard Dave Nussbaumer and forward Anthony Jones.

With Ron Jones, Del Yarbrough and Joe Galvin gone, the young team includes six sophomores and two freshmen. Donewald is looking particularly to the sophomores for important spots.

"Last year's freshmen proved they could do the job in minor roles," said Donewald. "Now, we'll find out if they can perform in major roles."

Coaching changes, additions told for women's athletics

Jill Hutchison, Illinois State University's veteran women's basketball coach, has been named acting director of the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, effective August 1.

Hutchison fills the vacancy left by Laurie Mabry, who announced her resignation in May after serving as the women's athletic director at Illinois State for the past 19 years. Mabry is continuing as a professor at ISU.

Huchison, in her 10th year at ISU, will continue with her head coaching responsibilities for the women's Redbird basketball team in addition to being the acting director.

The Board of Regents also approved the appointments of Linda Herman to acting assistant director of intercollegiate athletics for women and Rebecca Mayhew to acting assistant to the director. Herman will continue with her head coaching of the women's golf team.

The newest addition to the ISU women's athletic coaching staff is Kevin Hussey of Charleston. Hussey replaces Janice Jacoby as head tennis and badminton coach. Jacoby resigned her ISU position after three years to return to her hometown, Frankfort, Ind., to teach high school.

Hussey comes to ISU and his first collegiate coaching position from Alan Shepard Elementary School in Bourbonnais. He graduated from Eastern Illinois University in 1977 with a bachelor's degree in physical education and has played in numerous tournaments all over the Midwest, as well as tennis tournaments in the state.

Newcomers dominate roster of women distance runners

It's a good thing Coach Joyce Morton likes challenges.

The veteran mentor returns a sole runner from Illinois State's top five of last season, a quintet that captured second place in the state and amassed a 36-18 composite record.

The returning Redbird runner can hardly be considered a veteran, since Marlene Mooney will begin her sophomore year this fall. Morton has added a duo of newcomers to complement Mooney, with hopes that some of last year's runners will make the move up the finish ladder.

The newcomers include one incoming freshman and an ISU trackster. They are Patty Carrell, one of the state's outstanding prep distance runners, and junior Rita Lamb, who holds the school record in 800 meters with a 2:17 time.

"The success of this season will depend on how well the new freshman and new members adjust to Division I cross country competition," Morton expressed. "The season will definitely be full of surprises."

Other runners returning with a year of collegiate experience behind them are Leslie Dean, Natalie Russo, June Spears and Therese Turek.

A good invitational schedule awaits the Redbird harriers. ISU will run in the Southern Illinois Invitational, Eastern Michigan Invitational and host the Illinois State Invitational.

Fall baseball

Redbird baseball coach Duffy Bass will send his team into a 14-game schedule this fall with 19 returning lettermen from the spring season, plus some top recruits on hand.

The fall schedule includes five 1 p.m. home doubleheaders at Redbird Field. The season starts Sept. 26. Last year the Redbirds were 11-3 in fall competition.

McGinnis to coach defensive ends

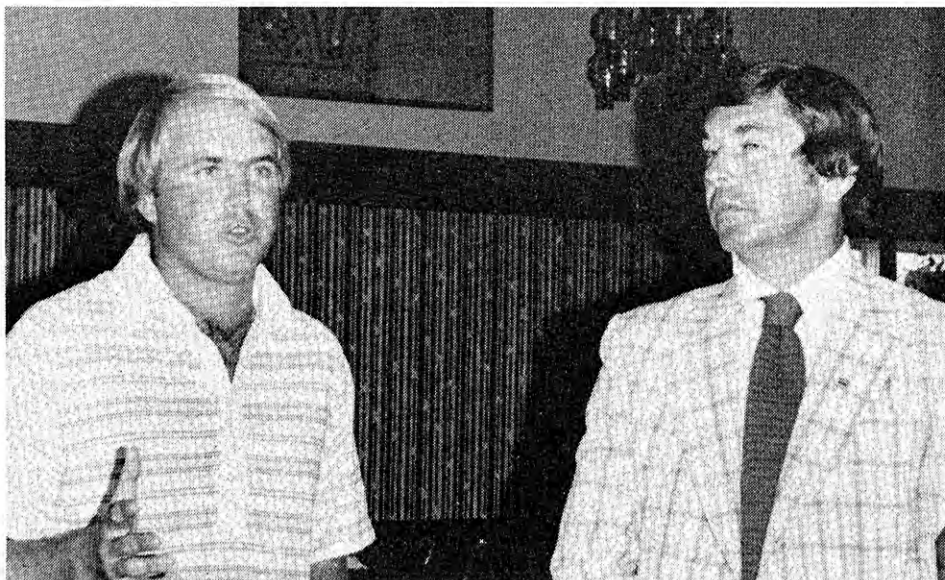

Tom McGinnis, 26, is the new defensive end coach of the Redbird football team. He finds a new spot in Charlie Cowdrey's football staff.

For the past two years he has been a graduate assistant coach at ISU while earning a master's degree in physical education.

A native of Chicago, McGinnis played high school football at Brother Rice.

Weibring golf outing highlights

D. A. Weibring, pro tour golfer and 1975 ISU graduate, came back to the University community in late July to do an exhibition for the benefit of the ISU golf program. The popular Quincy native helped raise over $1,000 for golf scholarships and promised to expand the program with a possible pro-am tournament in 1981.

Weibring (left) talks with Stan Ommen, The Redbird Club president, and others about future plans.

Some 100 golf fans watched as D. A. presented a clinic and played an exhibition round with alumni Brad Barker, Bill Kirkendall, Dan Roan and ISU coach Harland Kilborn.

Matteson leads men's cross country team

Track all-America Mike Matteson leads a list of 10 returning lettermen for the ISU cross country squad. John Coughlan, in his fourth year at ISU, is looking forward to competing for the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

"The MVC will add more fun," said Coughlan. "Everybody likes the opportunity to compete and win a conference meet."

Matteson, a junior, was an all-America in the 10,000 meter run last spring. He is expected to be the No. 1 man, but juniors Mike Baker and Herman Sahneyah will be challenging for the top spot.

The Redbirds also will be looking to defend their 1979 Illinois Intercollegiate Championship.

"Southern Illinois, West Texas State and Wichita State are always tough," said Coughlan. "Each year is different, but we are hoping to compete with those top teams."

Venerable seeks alumni aid in recruiting students

The Office of Admissions and Records at ISU, directed by Wilbur R. Venerable, is asking alumni throughout Illinois to help in telling the Illinois State story to prospective students and their parents.

"We are not asking you to conduct college night programs or pass out applications, but would like to have the option of calling on you in times of need," Venerable explains. "A good word about ISU to a prospective student here and a note to an interested parent there could produce attractive results."

Admissions staff members are assigned to specific areas of the state. Following is a schedule of 1980-81 assignments:

Dave Colee—South suburban area plus Sangamon, LaSalle, and Livingston Counties

Dan Dankoski—Quad-Cities area, extreme Northwest Illinois, plus Northern Cook County

Jeff Hamer—Portions of Central and Southern Illinois

John Hansen—Mid-section of Illinois, extending south from Bloomington-Normal

Mario Prada—Portions of Cook County

Herman Simon—Portions of Cook County and portions of St. Louis area

Joyce Webb—West suburban area, portions of south suburban area and portions of West Central Illinois

There may be occasion when one of these admissions representatives will call or write alumni to ask for assistance in contacting prospective students or providing local information to assist in the total recruitment effort.

The Office of Admissions and Records is in room 201 of Hovey Hall, the central administration building. Hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Illinois residents may reach the office by using the toll-free number of 800/322-2314, or by calling 309/438-2181.

September, 1980

The 1980 Homecoming at ISU could be the greatest yet - - in fact it will be if you attend. The activities that have been planned for you include the parade, departmental open houses, class luncheons, the football game, and the Homecoming dinner and the dance.

There will be reunions for the classes of 1935, 40, 45, 50, 55, 60, 65, 70 and 75. The College of Business and several other special interest groups are also planning activities, and the Distinguished Alumni awards will be presented.

This is your official invitation to Homecoming. If you are not in a reunion class or other special group, the information on this page may be your only notification about the various events. If you are identified with a special group, please let us know when ordering tickets so that you may be placed with others in your group at the various events.

Homecoming is always an excellent time to become acquainted, or re-acquainted, with other alumni, faculty, staff, and other friends! It is also a good time to look for the changes which have taken place on the campus since you were here last. The theme of "Reflections" provides an opportunity for you to do just that.

Order your tickets now by using the form on this page. Don't miss the 1980 Homecoming - - we want you to COME HOME to ISU on Saturday, October 18 ! !

Sincerely,

John M. Sayre
