ISU celebrates 125th anniversary

Illinois State University is observing its 125th anniversary in 1982 and plans are underway to celebrate ISU's founding in style. Art exhibits, receptions, historical displays, period costumes, and a dinner and "Toast to ISU" will be featured.

A university-wide committee has been at work for a year planning the events which center around Feb. 18, ISU's "Founders Day." The day's activities will begin at 10:30 a.m. with a commemorative ceremony on the site of the first ISU class at the corner of Front and East Streets in Bloomington. The official proclamation which founded ISU will be read along with congratulatory messages from local mayors, Governor Thompson, and President Reagan.

On-campus ceremonies will follow at 11:30 a.m. with the naming of two campus facilities in the Union Founders Suite and the dedication of a new carillon in the quad at 1:30 p.m.

Musical entertainment and the serving of a giant birthday cake will take place at noon in the Union for students, faculty/staff, alumni and members of the community.

"Highlights of 125 Years of ISU," a special exhibit in the lower level of Williams Hall will be displayed during a reception from 2 to 4 p.m., with the exhibit continuing until March 5. Another historical exhibit will be on display from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the Union Old Main Room, featuring photographs from ISU's history, General Hovey's personal papers, and other documents, as well as "finds" from the recent excavation of the Old Main site.

The culmination of the day's festivities will be the 125th Anniversary Dinner and "Toast to ISU" at 6:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

"It will be a fun evening to end a day of celebration of ISU's birthday," said Susan Kern, assistant to the president, and chairperson of the 125th Anniversary Committee.

The "Toast to ISU" will feature musical entertainment, historical "tales," and excerpts from plays about ISU with students in period costume enacting the eras of ISU's history. "We're hoping that alumni and members of the local community will be there to help us celebrate," Kern said.

Those attending the dinner and "Toast" will receive a copy of a special limited edition commemorative brochure telling the story of Illinois State University. Only 2,000 copies are being printed and are being donated by an ISU alumnus for the anniversary celebration.

Kern said that alumni play a special part in the anniversary observance and encourages alumni attendance at all of the day's activities, which are open to the public and free of charge, except for the dinner and "Toast to ISU" which is $10. An order blank for tickets can be found on page 2. Reservations must be made by Feb. 12.

Other special anniversary activities include the "President's Tea," hosted by President Lloyd Watkins at the Ewing Museum of Nations from 2 to 4 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 21. "The University Collects: 125th Anniversary Exhibition," an art exhibit in the Center for Visual Arts gallery, will display a variety of ISU memorabilia, including the unveiling of ISU's "circus collection," Feb. 2-21. The University Concert Band will present a special anniversary concert at 8:00 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 14 in the Union Auditorium.

Kern noted that local businesses will have items commemorating ISU's 125th anniversary for sale and that the University has commemorative 125th anniversary watercolor prints available for $12.50 which may be ordered through ISU Photo Service.

Throughout the year, the 125th anniversary theme has been carried on, Kern said, to show the impact that ISU students and faculty have had on the nation. "This is a celebration year for ISU," she explained, "and we want to make the accomplishments of the University known."

Old Main excavation reveals historical "finds"

The excavation of Old Main, ISU campus landmark for more than a century, is turning up some unusual objects. The bottles shown in the inset may have been used for a variety of purposes.

An archeological exploration of the area where the Old Main building once stood was conducted in late October by ISU students hoping to unearth some link to the past.

The main purpose of the dig is to locate the four corners of the building and to learn more about a previously unknown "room" with a vaulted brick ceiling that appears to have been outside Old Main's north wall. "It still remains a mystery as to what the purpose of this room was," said Archeological Technician Keith Barr, who led the students in the dig. "It does not appear in the original basement floor plan of Old Main and, so far, research has not been able to reveal any references to it."

Barr has uncovered one of four water cisterns located in the walls of Old Main where many artifacts have been found. An Indian Head penny, dated 1889, is one of the objects that can be used as a historical "marker" of sorts. "Anything found above that point had to be placed there after 1889," he explained.

One very beautiful "find" is a dark blue rounded glass bottle filled with a milky fluid that Barr believes to be a type of fire extinguisher. When the bottle was thrown into a fire, it broke and the liquid would help extinguish the flames.

Some of the other "finds" have included a Watkins Drinks Bottle with the printing "Every Swallow Pure" (circa 1930); a Sanford's Ink and Library Paste bottle (Patent Feb. 27, 1906), a condiment bottle and fragments of clay pipes, glass, ceramics, porcelain, and marble artifacts.

"We haven't found any gold or silver yet," Barr laughed. "We located the original foundation and that was one of our main goals."

In June, power company workmen uncovered the vaulted room and Barr and members of the Midwestern Archeological Research Center began their plans for further exploration.

Barr said that alumni who remember Old Main and its structure may be able to shed some light as to the function of the newly-discovered room. The location, according to Barr, appears to be outside the north wall of Old Main between the main north steps and the northeast steps that led to the basement.

Carr

Wayne Carr, associate director of records at ISU, has been placed in charge of developing the Student Information System, a newly created procedure for coordinating the use of student records from various university offices.

Carr will be assisted by a committee chosen from the undergraduate and graduate schools, alumni office, comptroller's office, institutional research, financial aids, admissions and records, and others.

Kohn

Rita Kohn, College of Continuing Education and Public Service at ISU, was recently honored at the Illinois Author's Luncheon at the Palmer House in Chicago.

She received a certificate of recognition for "the hours of good reading provided by this Illinois author" from Secretary of State and State Librarian Jim Edgar. Mrs. Kohn's latest book, You Can Do It, has been receiving critical acclaim in review media. Krysta Tepper '73, worked on the book with Mrs. Kohn. While a student at ISU, Mrs. Kohn wrote Jesse Fell: Planter of Cities.

Sudano

Gary R. Sudano, ISU music professor, was featured on the back page of the Sept. 2 issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education. The article is headlined "Teaching: the First 25 Years are the Hardest," and is a whimsical progression through various career stages. They range from the fifth year, when "you get used to the fact that only senior professors have first-floor offices with windows," to the 25th year when "you trade your windowed office for one nearer the restroom."

Sudano joined the ISU faculty in 1970.

Richardson

ISU Professor Arlan Richardson, internationally known for his research on aging, has been elected president of the American Aging Association (AGE), a national organization that promotes scientific research on the aging process.

A chemistry and biology professor, Richardson will be serving his second term as president. He previously led the organization in 1979-80. Richardson joined the ISU faculty in 1971.

1982 class officers named

The Class of 1982 Leadership Council recently elected officers for the 1981-82 school year. The Leadership Council works with Alumni Services in promoting the senior class and selecting a class gift, a class logo, in the selling of ISU graduation announcements and other special activities.

Elected were Mark S. Tate, an agribusiness major from Ridge Farm, president; Michael Sauvageau, a mass communications major from Ottawa, vice president for special events; Patricia Behrens, a mass communications major from Yorkville, vice president for fundraising; Margaret Basch, a political science major from Mt. Prospect, vice president for departmental involvement; Lynn Duncan, a music education major from Geneseo, secretary; and Rebecca Bacidore, an accounting and business administration major from LaSalle, treasurer.

ISU alumni at inaugurations

During the fall of 1981, 11 alumni represented ISU at inauguration ceremonies for college or university presidents around the country.

They are: Rodney Boyd '66, Topeka, Kan., at Washburn University; Marion F. Cole '42, Chicago, at DePaul University; John P. Dunnell '55, River Forest, at Rosary College; Kathleen (Moore) Farling '66, Oxford, Ohio, at Miami University; James E. Luallen '57, Fort Collins, Colo., at Colorado State University; Moira (Higgins) Poe '64, N. Lauderdale, Fla., at University of Miami; Daniel Swearngen '76, Point Lookout, Mo., at The School of the Ozarks; John Turley '68, Milwaukie, Ore., at Lewis & Clark College; Judith (Darby) Vanderpool '59, Huntington, Ind., at Huntington College; Alma (Haws) Wilkerson '27, Waco, Texas, at Baylor University; and Larry Winterholter '65, Upland, Ind., at Taylor University.

Placement

The Illinois State University Placement Service aids all ISU alumni as well as current students.

If you are in search of a position in your field, Placement Services offers individual employment counseling to help you determine your career goals.

WGLT installs satellite dish

ISU's public radio station, WGLT-FM, has been successful in its fundraising drive toward the purchase of satellite receiving equipment necessary for maintaining affiliation with the National Public Radio network.

A fiberglass "dish" arrived in late October which has been anchored to the roof of the Educational Media Center enabling WGLT to receive eight high quality broadcast channels currently being beamed from a satellite hovering 22,000 miles above the earth.

The $20,000 project received a $10,000 grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and a $5,000 loan from the ISU Foundation, with the remaining monies raised in a fund drive in September.

Preview Guides gather for first Homecoming reunion

A reunion of former Preview Guides was held following the Homecoming football game in the University Union with nearly 100 former guides and coordinators in attendance.

Sixteen years of Preview Guides and their spouses and friends were invited to the reception which featured addresses by former Vice President Arthur Larsen, Director of Admissions and Records, Dr. Wilbur Venerable, and Mrs. Karin Bone, wife of former president, Robert Bone.

Preview began in 1966, the brainchild of President Bone and Dr. Charles McBriarty, dean of student services, to help new students and their parents become better acquainted with ISU. Nearly 44,000 new freshmen have attended the Preview orientation program in its sixteen years of operation.

Former coordinators attending the reunion were McBriarty, Dr. Robert Elsey, Ron Hughes, Dr. Carolyn Bartlett, David Colee, and Joyce Webb Penland.

ISU reduces enrollment

Illinois State succeeded this fall in reducing its enrollment to 19,479 students, a reduction of 238 from last year's 19,717. Budgetary and space limitations were cited for the reduction in enrollment which prompted admission cut-offs for new freshmen and transfer students last spring.

President Lloyd I. Watkins commended the efforts of the admission staff and academic departments in reaching the goal, noting that had measures to curtail enrollments not been initiated during the last two years, ISU's on-campus enrollment could have soared to 21,000.

"While record enrollments look good on paper," Watkins said, "enrollments which unduly stretch the human and physical resources of the university will have a negative impact on the quality of education we offer. Our first concern must be with a maintenance of quality in our academic programs, and to achieve this goal, we must have manageable numbers of people."

In addition to cutting off the admission of new freshmen and transfer students last spring, the university took the extraordinary measure of closing re-admission to former students in June in order to keep enrollment at a manageable level.

Dates determined for ISU Summer session classes

Dates for ISU's Summer Session have been set, according to Dr. Gary Davis, assistant provost and director of Summer Sessions.

The 1982 Pre-session of classes will begin May 10, 1982 with courses offered from one to five weeks in duration. The Summer Session will begin on June 14, 1982, although some courses will begin later depending on length of the course. Summer school will end August 6.

All persons who have not been in regular attendance at ISU must apply for readmission to the University. Applications may be obtained through the Office of Admissions and Records, 201 Hovey Hall. Applications should be received at least two weeks prior to the start of Summer Session.

Summer School bulletins will be available in early April from Admissions and Records or from the Assistant Provost, 408 Hovey Hall.

Sixteen years of ISU Preview Guides and program coordinators gathered at a reception following the ISU Homecoming football game.

College of Arts and Sciences provides services

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series featuring the six colleges at Illinois State University. Opening the series was the feature on CAST in July, followed by College of Business in September. Others will follow as space permits.

By Mary Schnell

While the College of Arts and Sciences maintains its traditional role of teaching and research, things are changing. Community and university service is being emphasized and students and Normal-Bloomington residents are reaping the benefits.

The "Grammar Hotline," established last year by the English Department, has received national attention from the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times. The Hotline was initially intended for local use, however over 1,500 inquiries have been received from across the nation since the program began.

Students, secretaries, and the business community call the Hotline, which is answered by an English professor or graduate student. The Hotline is open to the public for questions concerning grammar, correct usage, etc., from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday for lower long-distance rates. So next time there is a debate about the use of "affect" or "effect," contact the Grammar Hotline at (309) 438-2345.

Community service

The Communication Department provides nightly news to Normal-Bloomington and area residents via the "TV-10 Evening News." The program focuses on news of local interest and is staffed by students in broadcasting and television production courses.

The Department also sponsors "Communication Week," featuring seminars and panel discussions by professionals in the communication field, many of whom are ISU alumni. Skills in interviewing and resume writing and other career opportunities are provided as part of the week's activities. The ISU Placement Service will provide employment interviewing opportunities for current communication majors this year.

As a service to educators, the Economics Department has developed the Center for Economic Education, which creates and conducts programs for elementary, junior high and high school teachers to assist them in enhancing the economic understanding of their students. The programs provide teachers with a firm grounding in basic economic concepts and equip them with the appropriate methodologies for instruction at all grade levels.

Through the Speech Pathology/Audiology Department, the Eckelmann-Taylor Speech and Hearing Clinic serves the needs of people in the Normal-Bloomington community who have communication disorders.

Diagnostic services, therapy and counseling to individuals with varying types of speech, hearing and language disorders are provided, all free of charge. The Clinic also serves as a training center for undergraduate and graduate students majoring in speech pathology and audiology.

Community research

In the department of Sociology-Anthropology-Social Work the Community Research Program provides data from the U.S. Census Bureau which is available at cost to the public. ISU's CRS program is part of the Illinois State Data Center, one of five state institutions recognized by the Census Bureau.

The CRS program also offers a community study service which conducts surveys for local government, social and business agencies.

Another service of the Department is the Midwestern Archeological Center, an archeological research facility which contracts work with government agencies and private construction companies.

When an environmental impact statement determines that construction would affect the natural and cultural environment, or if a significant archeological site lies in the path of construction, the Midwestern Archeological Center takes action—usually excavation or a change in construction plans. Students are used in excavation work which offers them archeological training and future employment opportunities.

Career alternatives

While the College of Arts and Sciences continues to educate future teachers, ISU's "Grammar Hotline" has received national attention for its role in helping students and community residents with grammatical questions of all kinds.

many departments which have traditionally focused on preparing students for careers in education are broadening their scope to orient students to non-teaching jobs as well.

In reaction to the slumping job market the History Department is offering a course on "Careers in History and the Social Sciences," which places emphasis on non-teaching employment opportunities for history majors. The Department is also very active in the International Studies Program at ISU. In recent years, members of the history staff have taken student groups to France, Austria, England, China, and Japan to broaden their educational experiences.

The Mathematics Department has also taken steps to present career alternatives to its majors by developing the Mathematics Career Center. It contains an extensive collection of materials on a variety of careers which utilize mathematics.

Biological Sciences majors who participate in a "professional practice" experience have the opportunity to work in zoos observing animal behavior, sewage treatment plants observing quality control, and at the Clinton atomic energy plant observing fish and animal life near Clinton Lake. These experiences give students an insight as to their future capabilities in such fields.

The Political Science Department affords its students the chance to be interns on the local, state, and federal level of government. Students may work on a political campaign, a state's attorney's office, a legislative office in Springfield, or a federal agency in Washington, D.C.

To improve the employment outlook for its graduates, the Chemistry Department has implemented an Industrial Coop Program which places students with national and international corporations. ISU's Chemistry program ranks among the national leaders in American Chemical Society certified graduates, which has also resulted in better placement for students desiring graduate school.

Learning centers

The College of Arts and Sciences continues its service to the university and community through learning centers in mathematics and English.

The University Writing Center is designed to help students and faculty. Students find tutors willing to help them with many different writing problems. While not a proofreading service, tutors will go through students' work with them and answer questions. The Center provides faculty with teaching materials, individualized instruction packets, and style manuals for use in teaching and research. Writing workshops, often with guest speakers, are held throughout the year.

The Mathematics Learning Assistance Center provides individual help to students in courses from algebra to calculus as well as remedial assistance.

University's core

The primary "core" of courses in which students enroll in their first two years at ISU are offered in the College of Arts and Sciences. All ISU students are required, through the University Studies Program, to take a variety of coursework in communication, humanities, logical studies, social and psychological studies, natural sciences, and other interdisciplinary studies offered in Arts and Sciences.

In addition to the departments mentioned previously, the College of Arts and Sciences includes: Foreign Languages, Geography/Geology, Philosophy, Physics, and Psychology.

Currently there are 3,895 students (undergraduate and graduate) majoring in one of the 24 majors in the College of Arts and Sciences. Of the 15 departments, 14 offer Masters of Sciences or Arts degrees, four offer the Doctor of Arts degree and Biological Sciences offers the Ph.D.

Dr. C. Edward Streeter is dean of the College, a position he has held since 1976. Prior to his becoming dean, he was chairperson of the Information Sciences Department (now Communication) since 1972. From 1967, when he first came to ISU, to 1972, he served as an associate professor in education.

For more information about the College of Arts and Sciences, contact Dr. Streeter in 141 Stevenson Hall.

Mary Schnell is a senior majoring in mass communication and speech communication from Mt. Prospect.

Bartonville resident, Richard Jordan, and his mother, Marjorie, take advantage of the hearing testing equipment at ISU's Eckelmann-Taylor Speech and Hearing Clinic located in Fairchild Hall.

ISU alumnus likes career as technical illustrator

ISU alumnus Jim Neaves, BS '72, MS '74, has recently been named supervisor of photography and supervisor of the marketing research/engineering special library in addition to his duties as supervisor of illustrating for technical publications for Texas Instruments in Austin, Texas.

"I keep busy!" Neaves said. In addition to his new responsibilities at Texas Instruments, he was recently accepted into the Cartoonists Guild, Inc. of New York. "Sixteen years of cartooning finally paid off," he explained.

The Technical Publications Group of Texas Instruments produces documentation for the hardware and software built and developed at the Austin facility. Neaves' area produces materials for TI's handbooks and manuals including perspectives and flow charts as well as cover designs and other commercial artwork.

As supervisor for the marketing research/engineering library, Neaves helps to provide materials for research and analysis of TI's equipment and that of "every other competitor known."

"People in the field contact the library staff to enlighten themselves on various competitors daily. The engineers are using material to help them develop new products. All in all it is a fairly exciting job," he said.

In his spare time, Neaves continues to pursue his favorite hobby of muzzle-loading firearms and over the past few years has won 21 blue, 14 red, and 10 white ribbons in organized black powder shoots.

Neaves received his B.S. in art and his M.S. in educational media.

Alumni constituencies offer departmental involvement

ISU alumni have the opportunity to become actively involved with their major departments by joining alumni departmental "constituencies."

Alumni constituency groups serve various functions for their departments including speakers for career days on campus, advisors on course and curriculum improvement, future employers of current ISU students, and excellent resource persons.

Joining a departmental constituency allows each ISU graduate the chance to continue an active relationship with his or her major department.

Nine departments at ISU are currently in the process of building alumni departmental constituency groups and are actively seeking interested alumni to become involved in the process. These departments are: Applied Computer Science, Specialized Educational Development, Biology, English, Mathematics, Political Science, Music, Philosophy, and Art. Other departments are being contacted so that alumni constituencies may be formed.

Over 30 alumni were in attendance at the first planning meeting of the nine departmental constituencies on October 10 along with departmental liaison persons who are working closely with each group.

If you are interested in joining a constituency group for your major department, please complete the following form and return it to: Department Constituency, Rambo House, Normal, IL 61761.

DeKalb

A pep rally and buffet were held on Sept. 26 at the DeKalb Holiday Inn for Northern Illinois area alumni prior to the ISU-Northern Illinois football game. The ISU cheerleaders, Coryphees, the Redbird mascot and the Redtop Band led cheers for the nearly 100 people in attendance.

Alumni in attendance were: Rita and Bill Adams '51, Carol Stream; Howard Burton '63, Hampshire; Carol Ann and George Couper '73, Rockford; Margaret Flott '81, Aurora; Willis Kersten '52, Winnebago; Laura Kersten '77, Elgin; Patricia and James Kloepfing '73, Chana; Randy Laugges '80, Rockford; Joan and Bruce Nelson '72, Belvidere; Julie (Lovejoy) '72 and David Nichols, Rockford; Maureen and Raymond Rogina '69, St. Charles; Linda Rosenstiel '74, Rochelle; David Shurr '68 MS '70, Geneva; Sam Sullivan '22 '28, DeKalb; Debbie (Rogers) '79 and Gary Tiffany '74, Loves Park; Albert Trumpy '43, Geneva; Deborah (Jordan) '74 and John Walters '74, Elgin; Daniel Valkema '80, Hoffman Estates; Richard Evans '81, Hoffman Estates; Judy and William Werbach '62, St. Charles; Laurel (Lauterbach) '73 and Mark Waszak '72, Lombard; Brian Bown '76, Naperville.

In addition to Alumni Services office staff, Alumni Association President Sam Van Scoyoc and Board member Chuck Witte attended the rally and game.

Indianapolis

An informal meeting for Indianapolis, Indiana area alumni was held Oct. 25 in the home of Janet and David Bell. John M. Sayre, director of Alumni Services and Development, spoke to the group about forming a permanent alumni area committee.

In attendance were: Janet (Jones) '65 and David Bell '67, John Coughlin '41, Eulah and Wilbur Burton '36, Marie (Johannes) '44 and Joe Reidy, Susan and Rick Stephens '77 MS '80, Janet (Coe) '73 and Gary Mattingly, Gerald Weatherford '56 and daughter, Jennifer, and Jenny VanDyke '80.

Other Indianapolis area alumni may contact any of the persons in attendance at the meeting for more information on forming a permanent committee.

'82 reunions slated

Next year's homecoming will provide reunion opportunities for alumni in the following classes: 1977, 1972, 1967, 1962, 1957, 1952, 1947, 1942, and 1937. Alumni in these classes and all others are encouraged to mark October 30, 1982 for Homecoming.

A special "reunion" will be celebrated by members of the Class of 1932 when they join the "Half Century Club" on Saturday, May 1, 1982. Plans are being finalized for the day's activities and will appear in the March ALUMNI NEWS.

Nominations open for alumni board

Nominations for the Alumni Association Board of Directors may be submitted to the Alumni Services Office. Six directors will be elected or re-elected in June for three-year terms. The 18-member Board of Directors serves as an advisory committee to Alumni Services. Persons interested in serving on the Board of Directors may submit their names for the election, which takes place at the National Alumni Assembly meeting next June.

ISU offers foreign study

Alumni have the opportunity to join with current ISU students and combine travel and learning in ISU's Study Abroad Programs for Summer.

Because the Study Abroad Program is like any other summer school course, alumni must apply for readmission to ISU for summer school in order to enroll in a study abroad course. Coursework may be audited or taken for academic credit.

The following programs are being offered for Summer 1982:

Program	Dates (or weeks) approx.	Director
Angers, France (agriculture)	May 28-July 11	Prof. Fred Fuess
Angers France (business)	(4 weeks)	Prof. Iris Varner
Grenoble, France (language)	June 17-August 14	Prof. George Petrossian
Paris, Brighton (art)	June 17-July 19	Prof. Robert Steff
Madrid, Spain (language)	June 28-August 5	Prof. Diane Urey
Weymouth, England (English literature)	(6 weeks)	Prof. Wm. Morgan
Beijing, China (Peoples' Republic of China)	May 14-June 11	Prof. Ed Jelks
Europe (Music)	(4 weeks)	Prof. George Foeller
Bonn, Germany (language)	(6 weeks)	Prof. Bodo Fritzen

The academic courses offered in these locations may have some prerequisites which should be cleared with the program's director.

"It is our expectation that alumni will have some background in the subject," explained Dr. Ted Sands, director of the International Studies Program.

1936 Class Reunion

Class reunion highlights

1936—Wilbur "Barney" Barton "They were the lean years, they were the happy years, and they were the Depression years. We had to make things happen. History was being made and we were part of it. We finally beat Wesleyan in football and everyone got a small piece of their goal posts. We had waited oh, so long. We turned to such happenings as the abdication of Edward VIII, the new best seller 'Gone with the Wind,' and we danced to such bands as Wayne King, Danny Russo and others. . . Those were the days, my friend."

1941—John Baldini "Forty years—a 'moment' in the history of civilization; considerably more than that in a lifetime. Fortunately, members of our class have not changed that much in 40 years, except, perhaps, for hair color and waistline measurement. But our campus, as we remember it, is gone forever, replaced by magnificent, modern buildings. Happily, Cook Hall and Fell Hall remain so that we old-timers still can relate to the scene. The most drastic change since 1941, however, is not in its architecture, but in student lifestyles. Certainly the lifestyles of students have changed drastically in the last four decades. But, underlying all of that, is the fact that the end result remains the same—obtaining a quality education."

1946—Ken Miller "Not only did we learn to learn and learn to teach, but we learned to participate in all the activities available to us. We grew to love the small campus that was adequate for the limited numbers of us then attending old ISNU. Later we felt a bit hurt when 'Normal' was removed from the name, maybe because we sensed a threat to our sanity with the loss of that reassurance. . . We were a class singled out for experimentation. We were the first to be subjected to 'Observation and Reading'—our first professional course. . . and we were sure that some of the required courses were designed only to keep us from getting more work in our major and minor fields. . . The Class of 1946—35 years ago! Impossible! That was yesterday, and tomorrow

1951—Gordon Fidler "I have resorted to plagerism by assembling some of the headlines from the 1950-51 Vidette. . . Enrollment reaches 2418—Women outnumber men by 436—Veteran enrollment reaches 231. . . Pin stripes will be the favorite style for men this fall. . . Lawrence Welk with Myron Floren slated to play for first Big 4 dance. . . Black Friars are to present a skit at the Annual Tomato Festival. . . Barb Lane is Homecoming Queen. . . Students still await improvement of campus drinking facilities (a request to improve drinking fountains around campus). . . Students withdrawing after 12 weeks to join armed services to receive full credit. . . What ISNU needs is a Student Union. . . ISNU to award 384 degrees on Saturday, June 9, 1951."

1956—Guy Diercoff "In September of 1952 we arrived at 'Normal' almost 500 strong. Memories of those days at ISNU are very vivid. . . the opening of the 'in' place in back of Fell Hall—"The Cage". . . Miss Crosby at Milner Library. . . the gathering at 'four corners' in Old Main. . . the Sophomore Cotillion. . . the nook on 'old '66'. . . the ginko tree. And then on a Saturday in the spring of 1956 it was all behind us. Resplendent in our caps and gowns we gathered one last time—flipped our tassels—and we were college grads. We were a class of young people who did things. We did them well and they were accomplished in a spirit of good fellowship."

1961—Fred Dornback "The Class of '61 entered ISNU in the fall of 1957 which was the beginning of the ISNU second century. Do you recall. . . the inauguration of Dr. Robert Bone as President and his ability to remember everyone. . . the blending of the veterans and us kids. . . smoking on campus was really legitimate. . . the last days for Old Main and the start of the Centennial Fine Arts building. . . crew cuts, bobby socks, and 10:00 hours for the girls. . . Saturday morning room inspections. . . the Dukes of Dixie and our own Gamma Phi and the Black Friars. . . the excitement of Coach Collie's 1958 IIC basketball champs. . . In the spring of '61 as seniors and 650 strong we thought about student teaching, the bureau of appointments, marriage, graduate school, a job, a job, a job—just think starting salaries ranged from four to five thousand!"

1966—Sandra Scott "See if you can remember. . . cherry cokes at the Cage. . . guys in Dunn Hall and girls in Barton and with the doors unlocked between them—was this the first coed dorm perhaps? . . . the moment they announced President Kennedy had been assassinated. . . the opening of the west campus area—Tri-Towers, Turner Hall, Horton Fieldhouse and Hancock Stadium. . . the great card section at the football game (I always seemed to get the colors of my cards mixed up.). . . President Bone who always greeted you as though he was glad to see you and you felt he meant it. . . Old North Hall being torn down. . . Old U-High becoming Moulton Hall. . . We started at Illinois State Normal University but graduated from Illinois State University. Did we change as much in those four years?"

1971—James Finley "A lot happened during the '67-'71 four-year period at ISU, including the leadership of two presidents, Sam Braden and Francis Geigle. We were 1969 baseball champs. Coach Duffy Bass had a 22 and 7 record. . . the 1969 moon walk by Neil Armstrong. . . Master Plan Phase III (entitled the giant leap backwards by students). . . the flagpole incident. . . the infamous panty raids. The Class of 1971 provided leadership at a crucial time in ISU's history. . . every student on the Academic Senate executive board during the first and formative year of the organization was from the Class of '71. When we graduated a little bit of ISU went with us, but more importantly, a little bit of us remained at ISU."

1976—Cathi (Carlin) Hogan "Nixon, Watergate, Ford, Patty Hearst were the news makers of the time. Eighteen year-olds got the vote. The war ended and gas prices took off. OPEC became a household word. Streaking dropped briefly onto the scene. And Billie Jean King struck a winning volley for women's rights. ISU was rapidly expanding in the student population. . . and in its physical space. 1973 saw the opening of the University Union Auditorium. . . students would even wait overnight for tickets for their favorite group. . . We celebrated much during those four years—the end of our, our own Olympic hero, and our nation's Bicentennial. It was a wonderful place to spend those four years."

Although dampened by intermittent rains, Illinois State's 1981 Homecoming celebration drew its largest ever attendance. Over 600 alumni, friends, and families attended reunion class luncheons in the University Union, over 11,000 attended the homecoming football game, and over 450 attended the Homecoming dinner and dance at the National Guard Armory.

In honor of ISU's 125th anniversary, the Homecoming theme "Time Passages," was selected for the occasion.

English Department interested in grads

The English Department, as part of its continuing effort to maintain contact with its alumni, is requesting career and personal information about its graduates. The department is especially interested in updated information about the specific jobs its graduates now hold and any notable achievements either in their careers or personal lives. This material will be compiled into a departmental alumni newsletter. Information may be sent to Dr. Charles Harris, English Department, 409 Stevenson Hall, Normal, IL. 61761.

Indexes requested

Response to the request for old Index Yearbooks in the September issue of ALUMNI NEWS was excellent and the donated texts were distributed to those persons requesting them.

We have a new request from an alumna for the 1942, 1943, 1944 and 1945 Index Yearbooks and the Alumni Services office itself is in need of the 1927 Index.

Persons willing to part with these copies should contact the Alumni Services Office at Rambo House, ISU, Normal, Ill. 61761, (309) 438-2294.

sports review

Fall season sees highs and lows

By Craig Bohnert, Assistant SID

Fall 1981 had an assortment of highs and lows for teams fielded by the men's athletic department at ISU. Football, soccer, cross country and fall baseball had their shares of ups and downs.

Football gave Bob Otolski his baptism by fire as a major college head coach. His coaching style generated an enthusiasm for Redbird football that put more fans in the stands than any of the three previous years. Featuring a wide-open offense oriented to the pass, Otolski showed Redbird fans a few tricks that had not been seen for a while.

"One guy came up to me and told me he hadn't seen a quick kick used in 30 years," said Otolski of one of his favorite weapons.

Defensively, the Redbirds turned in consistently good performances, with only minor lapses during a tough schedule that featured competition for the Missouri Valley Conference title for the first time.

Soccer

Coach Bodo Fritzen's soccer Redbirds finished their season with a 10-6-4 mark, topping last year's school best of 10-8-3. Plagued by a rash of early-season injuries to his young team, Fritzen experimented with a variety of lineups.

Highlighting the season for the soccer squad were a win and a tie against Sangamon State and a tie with Edwardsville in the home opener. Both teams are considered soccer powerhouses.

Tony Oghafua, a native of Lagos, Nigeria, led the Redbirds in scoring this fall with 31 points on 14 goals and three assists. Oghafua registered two hat tricks (three goals in one game) and a trio of two-goal efforts.

Cross country

Cross country hit its high-water mark in September when the Redbirds defeated nationally-ranked Southern Illinois in a dual meet on the Salukis' home course, acknowledged to be one of the toughest in the country. Coach John Coughlan's squad earned a national rating of 17th this season and tied with Indiana for first in the Notre Dame Invitational.

Facing challenging opponents, the harriers finished third in the Illinois Intercollegiate meet held at ISU, and third in the Missouri Valley Conference championship behind Southern Illinois and Wichita State.

Baseball

Coach Duffy Bass got a good look at his prospects for the spring season while building an 11-4 record this fall. The Redbirds were paced by the batting of catcher Jim Pacanowski, who hit at a .522 clip. The ISU mound staff combined for a 2.65 ERA, which holds some promise for success this spring.

Basketball

With the weather getting colder, the emphasis turns to indoor sports, a time basketball fans have been waiting for since last March. Coach Bob Donewald lost last year's two top players to graduation but still has them around to help. McKay Smith and Anthony Jones are back in the capacity of graduate assistants this winter.

With only one senior and three juniors on an eleven-man roster, Donewald will have to be at his teaching best and hope for rapid maturity from his five freshman recruits.

Early-season injuries have hindered the development of the team. Junior forward Rick Lamb suffered a strained foot in September, and junior Raynard Malaine injured his foot in a pick-up game and still was not at 100 percent for the Red-White scrimmage. Lost at least until the new year is freshman forward Ahmad Bussie. A veteran of prep school play in Maine, Bussie suffered a shoulder separation and underwent surgery in October.

Wrestling

Wrestling coach George Girardi also has a problem: too much talent in certain weight classes. Welcoming back NCAA qualifiers Mike Jones, Neil Weiner, Leo Misdorn and Pat Carney, Girardi may be forced to move wrestlers into higher weight classes or redshirt certain performers.

Gymnastics

Alan Weith's gymnastics team looked to be in mid-season form during its first two meets, which holds promise of a successful season for the tumblers.

Swimming

Kathie Wickstrand, a former Pan American Games participant, has taken the reins of the swimming program this season and hopes to match the success of the retired Archie Harris. Back from last year's squad is sophomore Brett Carney, who sat out much of last year because of illness.

Rick Lamb

Former ISU coach Ed Struck dies

Edwin G. Struck, 76, who coached ISU's football team for 20 seasons from 1945 to 1964, died Sept. 24 in Clearwater, Fla. He coached the ISU Redbird teams to a record of 86-68-14, compiling 12 winning seasons which included winning the old Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title twice. His undefeated 1950 team went to the now defunct Corn Bowl. Struck was voted into the ISU Athletic Hall of Fame in 1975. Memorials in his name may be made to the ISU Foundation.

Enthusiasm marks preview of women's winter season

The emergence of Illinois State University women's golf team, plus the appearance of ISU cross country standout Wendy VanMierlo in the AIAW national meet, highlighted the fall women's athletic schedule as the women prepare for the winter season.

An enthusiastic Redbird basketball team headlines the winter sports. The ISU women had a 28-8 record last year, which included winning the state title and making it to the first round of the AIAW national tournament.

Golf

The ISU women golfers, under first-year coach Harland Kilborn, had their finest season in quite some time. The Redbirds began the season with a third-place finish in their own invitational.

That was followed by a first place in the Northern Illinois Invitational over five other teams; a state championship over Illinois, Southern Illinois and Northern Illinois; a fourth-place showing of 18 teams at Purdue, and finally, a third place at the MAIAW regional at Central Michigan in a 15-team field.

Cross country

The cross country team never quite reached the performance level that veteran head coach Joyce Morton had hoped for, but the saving grace was VanMierlo, a junior who had been with ISU as a freshman, transferred to Purdue, and then returned to the Redbirds.

VanMierlo was the team leader in every race, gradually lowering her times and peaking at the season's end. She won the individual state title, and then finished fifth in the MAIAW regional with a 16-minute, 57-second time for 5,000 meters.

The ISU team had finishes of: fourth of six at Purdue, seventh of 13 in its invitational, eighth of 10 at Eastern Michigan, second of six at Western Illinois, sixth of eight at Southern Illinois, third of four at the Missouri Valley meet, third of five at the state meet and seventh of eight at regionals.

Volleyball

The volleyball squad, second in the state last year and 35-17 overall, experienced what could be called a disappointing year—when compared to past performances. Yet the Redbirds had moments of brilliance, but the team's youthfulness was the cause of spotty play at times.

Coach Linda Herman, 238-84 before the season, had one lone senior, Sandy Fitzgerald, on the 14-player team. Conversely, there were nine freshmen and sophomores and five juniors on the squad. ISU was 25-26 with one week to go in the regular season.

Softball

ISU had its first fall softball schedule this year and finished with a 6-6 mark. Coach Margie Wright said defensive mistakes plagued the team, which lost all six games by one run. ISU had 18 errors in the 12 games.

Tennis

The Redbird tennis team turned in a 7-2 dual record for the fall, the two losses coming against Illinois and Southern Illinois, both by 6-3 scores. ISU had a 5-3 victory over Memphis State and a 5-4 triumph over Missouri.

ISU's doubles team of Nancy Webber and Sue Uranich, both seniors, defeated teammates Katie Waters and Jackie Brennan, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, to win the doubles title at the Dorothy McClure Tournament at Millikin in Decatur.

Athletic departments merged

Illinois State University will merge its men's and women's athletic programs July 1, 1982.

The decision, announced in late November, comes after more than a year and a half of study of the organization structure of athletics at ISU by a university-wide task force and the central administration.

Dr. Art Adams, assistant to the president and administrative officer for athletics, said the merger is in line with a current national trend among major universities to unify women's and men's programs in the interests of cohesiveness, equity, economy and coordination of facilities and resources.

Because the unification will result in the creation of four new positions—a single athletic director, an associate director and two assistant directors, instead of the six and a half current administrative positions—university regulations require searches to fill those jobs. Present staff members, as well as others from inside or outside the university, may apply.

Basketball

A look at the winter sports teams begins with the basketball squad, which in the last two years has a 51-18 record. ISU's main loss was senior Beth Landes, a guard who holds the school record of 41 points for a single game.

Yet, junior sensation Cathy Boswell is the all-around leader for ISU, with an 18.0 scoring average and 9.5 rebound average per game. She was also second in the nation in free throw accuracy with .848 (101 of 119 attempts).

Badminton

The Redbird badminton team, seventh of 17 teams in the AIAW national meet last year, had a 49-14 composite record a year ago. Coach Kevin Hussey hopes the team will pick up where it left off. ISU's national finish last year was the fifth year in a row the Redbirds had finished in the top 10 at nationals.

Gymnastics

New head coach Sue Bissonnette takes her first gymnastics squad into the season led by junior standout Gina Chiavini, an All-Regional selection two years ago and the team's MVP the last two seasons.

Swimming

Another new head coach, Kathie Wickstrand, takes charge of the swimming program. Wickstrand is a former top national swimmer with Indiana University and sees a great deal of untapped potential in the Redbird forces, which won't be short on returning performers. Back from last year are senior Vida Mikalonis, and juniors Kim Bornman, Kim Howard, Karen McCluskey, Jamie Rohloff and Jane Schramm. Freshman Cindy Seiler is the top newcomer.

Track and Field

The women's track and field squad lost some top point-getters to graduation, but will have experienced performers back in Rita Lamb, Linda McDuffy, Wendy VanMierlo and Cheryl Johnson.

Depth may play the most important part for the year's success. Head coach Joyce Morton appears to have the personnel to place in every event. The indoor season, beginning Jan. 15 and 16, should provide a perfect warm-up for the outdoor season.

Eleven men and women athletes were inducted into ISU's Athletic Hall of Fame during ceremonies on Sept. 5. Alumni Association Board member Burt Mercier made the introductions.

Alumni receive awards for sports contribution

A number of alumni were honored this fall for their outstanding contribution to Illinois State University athletics. Eleven were inducted into the 1981 Hall of Fame, two received the Stretch Miller Award, and Swim Coach Archie Harris was honored upon his retirement from ISU.

The six men and five women inducted into the Hall of Fame were Charlene Bremberg, Frank Chiodo, Barbara Cothren, Floyd Covill, Tom Hodgson, Kay McDonald, Rich Olson, Gary Ostrega, Jean Pankonin, Tinker Tipton, and Jim Whitman.

Their contributions to ISU athletics are told in the September issue of the ALUMNI NEWS.

The Stretch Miller award, given in memory of 1933 alumnus Campbell "Stretch" Miller who was a popular radio-television broadcaster, sports columnist and after-dinner speaker, was presented to Nelson Smith, director of ISU's Photo Service since 1939, and J. Russell Steele, ISU's first sports information director and former Assistant Director of Alumni Services.

The citation recognizes support to ISU athletics through interest, time and personal involvement. Past winners have been Eldon Lichty in 1976, Francis Brown in 1977, C.M. Hammerlund and the late Howard Ivens in 1978, Robert Monninger in 1979, and Ruth Henline in 1980.

Retiring after 24 years as head swim coach at ISU, Harris made a major impact on recreational swimming in central Illinois as well as gaining a national reputation for his role in competitive swimming.

Carla Schmidgall, a senior from Danvers received the $500 McKnight Publishing Company Scholarship awarded to the top ISU scholar in Industrial Education who plans to teach. Making the presentation were (from left) Richard D. Johnson, president, McKnight Publishing, Miss Schmidgall, Everett Israel, chairperson, Industrial Technology, and William McKnight Jr., chairman of the board emeritus, McKnight Publishing.

As A Service To ISU Alumni

INFORMATION AVAILABLE ABOUT 1981 TAX CHANGES

The 1981 Tax Act, which has been introduced under the Reagan Administration, has implemented the most dramatic changes in over forty years. Most persons will be affected by the changes either immediately or in the foreseeable future.

The ISU foundation will have available information regarding these changes and other estate planning programs. A periodic newsletter containing this information will be published starting in January.

Any ISU Alumni and other friends, who would like to receive this newsletter, should complete the form below and mail it to:

Anniversary items available

To commemorate Illinois State University's 125th Anniversary, a number of souvenir items are being made available. One item is a full-color artist's rendering of three men with key roles in ISU history, Jesse Fell, Abraham Lincoln, and General Charles Hovey. The water color painting also shows Old Main in contrast with Watterson Towers and is suitable for framing. The 11 by 14 inch print is available for $12.50 including all handling and postage charges.

In addition, anniversary key rings in plastic or in pewter, and a set of four leather coasters are available. The red plastic key ring is in the shape of the state of Illinois and costs 75 cents. The pewter key ring is circular and costs $2. The set of leather coasters with the anniversary insignia is $3. Checks may be made to the ISU-125th Anniversary Committee.
