About the Artist . . .

Raised in Peoria, IL, Doug Stone began playing the saxophone professionally at age 10. After high school, Doug attended Northern Illinois University where he performed with jazz legends Frank Wes, Frank Foster, Benny Golson, Rufus Reid, Ed Thigpen, Larry Ridley and a host of others. Stone also led NIU's top combo and several of his own groups: "The Jazz Arranging Syndicate" and "Scantly Clad" which featured his original works.

Since earning his bachelor's degree, Doug has performed with trombonist, composer, and arranger Joey Sellers and was a member of Panoramic, a world-jazz group co-led by steel pan virtuoso Liam Teague and pianist/percussionist Robert Chappell. In fall of 2004 and winter of 2005 Doug toured with Maynard Ferguson and the Big Bop Nouveau. From 2005-2010 Stone lived in Roselle, Illinois, and performed with many Chicago area artists including the Joel Spencer Quartet, the Nick Fryer Trio, the Chicago Metropolitan Jazz Orchestra, The John Burnett Orchestra, the Model Citizens Orchestra, John Bany's Men of Note, Human Motion, Aaron McEver's M-13, the Ian Torres Big Band, and the Ed Breazeale Group. Stone also continued leading his own trios and quartets and co-led the Nick Fryer/Doug Stone Quartet and the Stone/Bratt Big Band.

Doug's recording credits include: The Sam Crain Quartet, the Dave Hoffman Sextet, the NIU Jazz Ensemble and Jazztet, the Jazz Arranging Syndicate, Scantly Clad, Birch Creek Academy Big Band, the Ed Breazeale Group, the Ji Young Lee Quartet, the Stuart Mindeman Group, Panoramic, Quintopus, and the Rick Holland Little Big Band.

As a music educator, Stone has been a private instructor of woodwind instruments and jazz improvisation, as well as director of the NIU Community School of the Arts Jazz Band and the Youth Jazz Ensemble of DuPage and jazz combos at St. Charles North High School in St. Charles, Illinois. Stone has presented clinics at Northwestern University, Illinois State University, Bradley University, University of Missouri Columbia, Normandale Community College in Bloomington, Minnesota, and Saddleback College in Mission Viejo, California. Additionally, he has served as jazz band adjudicator for festivals at Prairie State College in Chicago Heights, Illinois and at Illinois State University.

An accomplished composer, Stone has had works for big band performed by the Central Illinois Jazz Train Orchestra, the University of Missouri Columbia Jazz Band, the Normandale Community College Jazz Band, The Eastman Jazz Ensemble, and vocalist Kathy Kosins. He also composed sight-reading etudes for the Illinois Music Educators Association jazz band auditions, and most recently was commissioned to write the 2013 IMEA jazz all-state piece which he entitled Boppin' to P-Town.

Doug currently lives in Rochester, NY where he is very busy performing regularly with the Dave Rivello Ensemble, Quintopus, and the Westview Project, and directing jazz bands at the Rochester School of the Arts (7th-12th grade). He is also the chair of the jazz department at the Eastman Community Music School and spends part of his summers as a faculty member at the Birch Creek Jazz Camp in Door County, WI.
