About the Artists . . .

Ryan Elliott is a junior trumpet performance major from Saginaw, Michigan. He has been a member of Illinois State University's Wind Symphony and Jazz Bands and has participated in several chamber ensembles including the Madrigal Brass Quintet. Mr. Elliott is in his third semester as principal trumpet of the ISU Symphony Orchestra. He is a member of the trumpet studio of Dr. Amy Gilreath.

Kevin Prina, baritone, a native of Eureka, Illinois, is a junior completing undergraduate degrees in voice and music therapy. For four years prior to entering ISU he studied voice with Paul Studerbaker in Eureka. Kevin will graduate in the fall of 2004, and following graduation, will pursue his music therapy internship followed by graduate school in vocal performance. He is a member of the voice studio of Professor John Koch.

Megan Lomonof, flutist is a junior music education major. She participates in ISU's Wind Symphony and Symphony Orchestra and has been a member of several chamber ensembles. In January, Ms. Lomonof was a prize winner at the Flute Society of Kentucky's 2003 Collegiate Artist Competition. She is a member of the flute studio of Dr. Kimberly Risinger.

Wang Ying, cellist is from Beijing, China where she attended the Central Conservatory of Music and she received the Bachelor of Music degree. While there she received the Performance Prize in the First National Cello Competition, 2nd place in the Bach competition, and several times received the excellent Student Recognition Award. She also toured with the Beijing Youth Symphony to Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Thailand. While in the U.S., Ying received a full scholarship to attend the prestigious National Orchestral Institute at the University of Maryland at College Park, an orchestral training festival. While there, she studied with Stephen Geber, principal cellist of the Cleveland Orchestra and Ronald Leonard, former principal cellist of the Los Angeles Philharmonic. She is a member of the Sinfonia da Camera, a chamber orchestra based in Champaign/Urbana and heard frequently on National Public Radio Performance Today. She is a member of the cello studio of Professor Gregory Hamilton.

Kristof Kovacs, pianist, is a graduate of the Franz Liszt College of Music in Budapest, Hungary and the Bela Bartok Conservatory in Vac. Currently, he is pursuing a graduate degree in piano performance. His major professor is Gellert Modos who heard him play at the 3rd International Liszt-Bartok Piano Competition for College Students and invited Kristof to study with him at ISU. Kovacs's previous piano teachers include Andras Kemenes and Ildiko Cs. Nagy, who was both a former graduate of ISU and former pupil of professor Modos.
