Coro
Come, Hymen, come then, and let your flaming torch be like a rising sun that brings to these lovers cloudless days, and now drives far away the horrors and ghosts of sorrow and pain.

Recitativo
Muses, honor of Parnassus, love of heaven, gentle counselors of a weary heart; may your sounding lyres rend the dark veil from every cloud; and while, today, propitious to our Orpheus, I invoke Hymen on well-tuned strings, let your songs be concordant with ours.

Coro
Leave the hills, leave the fountains, nymphs, charming and happy: where you so often dance, dance again.

Here let the sun admire your dances, which are more charming than those which the stars dance in heaven before the moon in the dark of night.

Then, with beautiful flowers, adorn the tresses of these lovers, that now, after the suffering of desire, they may at last be blessed.

Duetto
After the bitter cold of bare winter, spring dresses the fields in flowers.

Coro
Here is Orpheus, who only a short while ago, fed upon sighs, and had only tears to drink. Today he is so happy that there is nothing left for him to desire.
