About the Artist. . . .

At the age of 19, Julian Bliss is established on the international concert scene having already appeared as soloist with orchestras including the London Philharmonic, BBC Symphony, Royal Philharmonic, Orchestre National de France, City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra, Seattle Symphony, BBC Philharmonic, BBC National Orchestra of Wales, NHK Symphony, Munich Chamber, Gulbenkian Orchestra, Malaysian Philharmonic, Swedish Radio Symphony, and the Bergen Philharmonic.

In recital Julian has appeared at such prestigious venues as the Wigmore Hall, the Louvre in Paris, Montpellier Festival, Jerusalem Music Festival, Bad Kissingen and Mecklenburg Festivals and the Rheingau Festival. He recently made his recital debut at the Lincoln Center in New York to great critical acclaim. A prolific chamber musician, Julian has collaborated with artists such as Joshua Bell, Steven Isserlis, Mischa Maisky, Stephen Kovacevich, Elena Bashkirova, Julian Rachlin, Simon Trpc(eski, and H el ene Grimaud.

Following the success of Julian's debut recording for EMI with Julien Quentin, he was invited to record exclusively for EMI on their main label. His most recent release with Sabine Meyer as recording partner has been greeted with critical acclaim.

"Spohr Clarinet Concerto no.2 in C minor, colourfully played by Julian Bliss, is full of instrumental invention, pitting the clarinet against some highly original effects and so requiring much care in balance as well as finger dexterity." - Gramophone

He has already appeared on national television on numerous occasions; at the Queen's 80th Birthday at the BBC Proms in front of a live audience and a television audience around the world in forty countries, in a three-part documentary about his life for Channel 4 entitled 'Gifted', and was among the distinguished artists invited to perform at the Queen's Golden Jubilee Celebrations at Buckingham Palace on 1 June 2002.

Julian studied in the UK with Paul Harris and then with Sabine Meyer in Germany at the Musikhochschule in Lubeck.
