Dear Christopher,

Thank you for your recent request. Permission is hereby granted for this use as detailed in your request. No rights fees shall be attendant to this usage due to the small print run and educational use of the publication. Please note, however, in the event that any additional uses of the Max Beckmann work are planned (such as any web use, any cover use, any reproductions in excess of the requested one (1) print run, etc...), additional permission must be obtained in advance from ARS.

Also please include the following copyright credit line:

© 2015 Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York / VG Bild-Kunst, Bonn

This authorization includes the non-exclusive worldwide right to reproduce the work(s) in the context of the publication in print and electronic editions and through the following third-party services: EBSCOHost, JSTOR, Project MUSE. Any use outside of what is specified above will require additional permission and may require fees.

Any other uses (including, but not limited to advertisements, web display, brochures, etc) are subject to the review and approval of ARS and may be subject to licensing fees.

Please note: One gratis copy of the publication is required by ARS. Please send the gratis copy as well as copy of this letter of permissions to my attention at the address listed below.

If you have any further questions, feel free to contact me.

Best,
