

I will discuss a senior-level modeling course for mathematics majors at the University of Maryland. The course was recently redesigned to emphasize the use of real data, by C. D. Levermore, W. Czaja, E. Slud, and me. I will describe some of the data sets we use, what our students do with them, and how we organize group work and other aspects of the course.