BUILDING AND GROUNDS.

No extensive repairs are recommended for this summer. Some new seats and desks will be needed because of the reorganization of the training school. It is recommended that rubber treads be secured for the east stair cases from the first to second floor.

The potting shed to be built as an addition to our greenhouse is not yet begun. There has been great delay in securing brick. The brick is now on the way from Chester. Only one bid for the construction has been secured, $804.00 for all labor and material for completed structure except the plumbing and steam fitting and the brick to be used above ground. This bid with plans and specifications is submitted herewith for your approval. The bidder is Robert M. Huffington, who erected the main structure.

After the completion of this structure, the grading should be completed, cement walks built, and shrubbery planted to flank the structure properly. It is recommended that such expenditure be authorized.

Shrubs and trees to the value of $70.00 were purchased and planted on the grounds this spring. Owing to the dryness of the season, a large portion of these have failed to grow.

THE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Five years ago the State Board of Education and the school board of the town of Normal entered into an agreement combining the practice school of this institution with the public school system, and enabled us to use as a training department so much of the public school system as should be needed. We sought this union because our practice school department was altogether inadequate, the enrollment in the eight grades in 1900-1901 having fallen to 160, the average attendance being still smaller. The union cost the public school board over $2,100.00, mostly in additional salaries paid to critic teachers. In return for this outlay, the pupils of the public school have received instruction in art, music, physical training, and some use of the library, the campus, and gymnasium.

The public school board entered into this agreement after referring the question to the people of Normal. Seventy per cent of the 661 votes polled were in favor of the union. A portion of the minority have never been reconciled to the system. In the fall of 1903 they began an agitation for a dissolution of the union, claiming that it was unsatisfactory to the majority of the people interested.

The school board of Normal, believing that the union was of mutual benefit to the contracting parties and generally acceptable to the parents of the children, declined to resubmit the question.

Accordingly Mr. Andrew Lindblad, a leader of the faction favoring dissolution, applied to the circuit court of McLean county for an injunction, enjoining the public school board from paying any salary to the critic teachers. He also instituted suits against the members of the school board for the recovery of such salaries already paid.

In December, 1903, Mr. Lindblad and his associates solicited an expression of public opinion upon the union by calling an election and appointing judges to canvass the vote. At this election 459 votes were cast for dissolution, the friends of the union generally abstaining from voting.

The next day the public school board, impressed by the unexpected strength of the opposition, acceded to Mr. Lindblad's request and notified your president and secretary that the union would be dissolved June 30, 1904.

A few weeks later Mr. Lindblad's attorney took further steps for the prosecution of his suits against the school board. That body indignant at this action after they had acceded to Mr. Lindblad's demand for a notice of dissolution, recalled that notice, preferring to rest the case upon the decision of the circuit court. This decision denied the petition for an injunction and upheld the right of the school board to enter into the articles of agreement with the State Board of Education.

Mr. Lindblad took an appeal to the Appellate Court, and later to the Supreme Court of the State.

At the school election in 1904, the separationists elected a member of the local school board; but in 1905 and 1906 the union candidates were elected. This spring the majority was so large that the public school board considered the question virtually settled, and agreed to the election of a joint superintendent and supervisor of practice and to some changes in the articles of agreement which would establish a closer union and add to the efficiency of our training department.

On April 18, 1906, the Supreme Court handed down a decision declaring the union unlawful on three chief counts:

1. Because under its provisions the board of education of the town of Normal delegated a portion of its powers to the authorities of the Normal University.

2. Because it provided for paying public school funds to "critic teachers" whose duty is not to teach children but to train normal students in the art of teaching.

3. Because it authorized the instruction of children in the public school by student teachers not legally qualified by holding a teacher's certificate.

This decision made it impossible for the union to continue. Accordingly, on April 27. President Gastman notified the school board of Normal that we should withdraw all of our student teachers from the public school, thus permitting the school board to re-employ the critic teachers as regular teachers for the rest of the year. Since that time these teachers have taught most of the classes in their respective rooms.

Thirty-seven of the student teachers obtained certificates from County Superintendent Wren and were employed as assistant teachers for the rest of the school year. The other forty-seven student teachers continued as "observers" for the rest of the term or took up other work.

On May 16 the local school board requested the parents of the children attending the elementary grades to state whether they preferred to send to the public school or to the University Model School.

Out of 449 children in attendance, 245 are reported for the model school, 121 for the public school. In eighty-three cases parents are undecided, or failed to report. These returns are very gratifying because they show that in spite of the frequent assertions that children are greatly injured by being "practiced upon" by student teachers, the great majority of parents prefer to keep their children under this form of instruction.

REORGANIZATION OF THE MODEL SCHOOL.

With the practical assurance of a sufficient attendance, it seems best to return to the organization adopted six years ago; viz., a training department of eight grades, each in charge of a training teacher. The probable attendance will not exceed forty children per grade. I think it will be wise to limit the attendance to this number which will probably be sufficient for the next five years. Seven of these grades with the kindergarten can be housed in the model school building. The eighth grade together with the younger pupils admitted with township scholarships may be accommodated in the old high school room which should be provided with regular school desks.

Tuition should be free in all grades below the high school. If any considerable rate be charged, the attendance will be insufficient. We are especially anxious to have our model school accessible to all worthy pupils. If the attendance becomes so large as to oblige us to turn people away then membership in the model school will be recognized as a privilege to be retained by diligence and good behavior.

At the State normal schools of Carbondale, Charleston and Macomb exist model schools of the kind here proposed. The attendance this spring is 181, 209, 106, respectively.

Our senior classes average twice as large as at the schools named. We need a training school twice as large.

The training department is a vital feature of the modern normal school. No state normal school now exists without such department. Even the universities that have made the preparation of teachers a part of their work have found themselves obliged to organize an elementary school for observation and training. The simple reason is that teaching is an art, and all arts are learned partly by imitation, partly by practice under wise direction. For both of these the elementary school is a necessity.

Section 4 of the Act establishing this institution reads as follows: "The objects of said normal university shall be to qualify teachers for the common schools of this State, by imparting instruction in the art of teaching, and all branches of study which pertain to a common school education, in the elements of the natural sciences, including agricultural chemistry, animal and vegetable physiology; in the fundamental laws of the United States and of the State of Illinois, in regard to the rights and duties of citizens, and such other studies as the board of education may, from time to time, prescribe."

It is hereby recognized by naming the art of teaching first, that the training department is really the central feature of the normal school toward which all the other instruction points.

Practice teaching to be of value to the students must present difficulties similar to these met with in public schools. Classes of considerable size are vital. For the present from 240 to 320 pupils in the elementary school will meet our needs.

THE LINDLY ACT.

Examinations for township scholarships were generally held by the county superintendents on May 12. In some counties many applicants were registered; in others but few. Twenty-seven county superintendents in the territory tributary to this institution report that they have issued 247 scholarships. The average age of the student appointed is fifteen. If two-thirds of these come to Normal two additional instructors may be needed in addition to the faculty now employed.

THE FACULTY.

It is with great regret that I report several resignations.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mavity Cunningham, for six years our teacher of grammar, for the last five years the very efficient head of our training department, leaves us to devote herself to domestic duties. In quickness of perception, in clearness of statement, in grasp of the principles of teaching, Mrs. Cunningham has few equals. Her departure is a distinct loss to the institution.

Miss Amelia F. Lucas, for the past twelve years teacher of reading, desires to be relieved, her resignation to take effect at the end of our first summer term. Miss Lucas during the past year has been attending Dr. Curry's school in Boston. Miss Lucas's work with us has been very efficient not only in developing our physical training in the earlier stages, but of late in improving the instruction in the training department.

Mr. John P. Stewart, assistant in elementary science and mathematics, leaves us for further study in Cornell University, he having been appointed to the fellowship in horticulture. Mr. Stewart has made a noteworthy success of his instruction in nature study; his courses having become very popular with our best students.

Miss Alice P. Watson, training teacher in the eleventh grade, will enter the University of Wisconsin.

Miss Rose Bland of the ninth grade will enter the University of Illinois.

Miss Lura Eystone of the first grade will enter the Teachers' College of Columbia University.

All of these training teachers have been very satisfactory both as teachers and as supervisors. They are highly esteemed alike by their associates in the faculty and by the parents of the children in their charge.

BUDGET.

The probable receipts for the coming year 1906-7 are—

From rents	600 00
From term fees.....	4,400 00
Total.....	$66,300 00

Contingent.....	2,000 00
Total.....	9,860 00
Total.....	$66,300 00

In this estimate we have assumed that receipts from tuition and salaries will be the same as during the present year. The estimates for fuel, repairs, grounds, etc., are liberal, being in excess of the expenditures of the past year or of the average for the past three years.

The balance on hand June 30 will probably be $4,200.00; $1,700.00 will meet the expenditures for buildings and grounds already authorized by the board.

There is then available $2,500.00 to provide for increases in salaries, and for additional instructors that may be needed because of the influx of pupils with township scholarships.

THE CALENDAR.

The following calendar is recommended for 1906-07:

Opening of training department—Sept. 3, 1906.

Fall term—Sept. 10, 1906—Nov. 30, 1906.

Winter term—Dec. 3, 1906—March 8, 1907.

Spring term—March 18, 1907—June 6, 1907.

First summer term—June 10, 1907—July 19, 1907.

Second summer term July 22, 1907—Aug. 30, 1907.

Winter recess—Dec. 22, 1906—Jan. 6, 1907.

In conclusion I would state that, barring the interruption of our training school caused by the Supreme Court decision, the year has been eminently successful.
